Better cut weeds!

Chief City Ordinance Enforcement Officer Lee Silvey stands among last year's growth of weeds to illustrate that Romulus intends to wage a campaign against noxious weeds this year, destroying the offensive plants before the hay fever season begins. Silvey warned if any Romulus property owner allows weeds to grow on their land without being cut the city will cut them and charge the cost to the property owner's tax bill. He said warning notices would be mailed first, however, giving the owner plenty of time to comply with the ordinance.

Partner found guilty

Suspect jumps bail

One of the suspects in a January burglary attempt of the 7-11 Party Store on Wayne Road in Romulus has jumped bail and disappeared, according to a Wayne County Sheriff Department spokesman.

The man, identified as Jerome Garland, of 47 E. Charlotte in Detroit, was remanded to Wayne County Circuit Court on a $50,000 bond after a preliminary examination at the 34th District Court before judges Henry Zaborowski and James Stone.

However, after a bond hearing at the court and being assigned a court-appointed lawyer, Circuit Judge Theodore Bohn lowered Garland's bail to $5,000.

Garland put up the required 10 percent and has not been seen since.

Philip Hines, Garland's partner in the burglary attempt found guilty by a jury of attempted armed robbery and is awaiting sentencing. He faces a maximum life term in prison for his crime.

Wayne County deputies Charley Baker and W.C. Jones apprehended the pair in the act of robbing the store on Jan. 11, 1979.

Eighteen members of the Halecreek Neighborhood Watch "Court Watchers" group were on hand during the examination of the two men, as part of a program to "watch" the criminal justice system in action.

Members wear name tags, identifying the crime prevention group, when cases involving their area are being heard at the 34th District Court.

Last month, Judge Zaborowski lauded the group for their involvement in the court process.

Oakley attends Lansing session

Headlee tax amendment causes headaches for state

The Headlee tax limitation amendment was foremost in minds of state municipal leaders convening last week in Lansing for the annual Michigan Municipal League's legislative conference.

Mayor William M. Oakley was accompanied by top Romulus elected officials who journeyed to the capitol to take part in a round of presentations, speeches, and work sessions sponsored by the organization of Michigan cities.

The keynote address, given by Governor William G. Milliken at the noon luncheon, set the tone of the conference when he stated, "Tax limitation does not mean the end of necessary services," but, "...a challenge to make the government we have work better."

Proposal E, the tax limitation amendment, which was narrowly passed by Michigan voters last fall, calls for a ceiling on all state and local taxes proportionate to the level of total state personal income, which amounted to an increase of around seven percent last year.

In addition, it prohibits local governments from adding new or increasing existing taxes and prohibits the state from mandating programs without providing funding.

The main problem in Lansing seems to be how state lawmakers basically hostile to the idea, are to implement the proposal using the rather vague language found in the document.

An implementation committee, appointed last year by Gov. Milliken, failed to reach any consensus, and the amendment currently remains in a state of bureaucratic limbo.

Senate Majority Leader William Faust, together with House Speaker Bobby Crim, in an effort to move the issue off dead center, have appointed a joint legislative task force to wrestle with the problem.

However, it was generally conceded in Lansing, that the complex amendment would eventually end up in court to be decided over the next several years.

The Headlee amendment wasn't the only bad news to greet Romulus leaders. Gov. Milliken also mentioned the cutback in the federal CETA program, which he said would mean the loss of more than 5,000 public service jobs and a revenue loss of $27.5 million.

A drastically scaled-down version of a countercyclical fiscal assistance program, begun several years ago nationwide was also mentioned by the governor to be an area of concern.

But, possibly of greatest concern to local governmental leaders, is the status of the federal revenue sharing program, which according to insiders at the conference faces a tough challenge next year in Congress.

Many cities, including Romulus, receive a sizeable portion of their budget through the program. Last year, it amounted to $450,000 to Romulus.

Other issues of concern presented by Senator Faust include the status of transportation monies, proposed changes in the tax structure, the protection of wetlands and the disposition of hazardous wastes.

All these issues were labeled "priority" items from the perspective of the Senate majority leader.

Accompanying Mayor Oakley to the conference were City Clerk Leonard J. Folmar, City Treasurer Helen Gallien and City Council members Mary Ann Banks, Junior Block and Jimmie Raspberry.

Remains are at the Baum Funeral Home in Romulus. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

SEMTA bus service to start

The long-awaited SEMTA county-wide curb-to-curb bus service for senior and the handicapped citizens will make its debut Friday, April 6, at five area locations.

Kickoff for the new bus service, named Essential Transportation System (ETS), is scheduled as follows: 10 a.m. — Romulus City Hall; 11:15 a.m. — Huron Township Hall; 1 p.m. — Sumpter Municipal Hall; 2 p.m. — Belleville City Hall; and 3 p.m. — Van Buren Township Hall.

Local, county and state dignitaries will be on hand at ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the five locations to herald the addition of 10 new buses to 11 presently in service.

According to Larry E. Salci, SEMTA general manager, 19 buses will actually be in operation as the first phase of ETS gets underway, with two buses held in reserve as replacements.

When fully implemented, a total of 74 buses will be picking up passengers at the five area stations, he explained.

The county ETS has been in the planning stages by SEMTA for more than two years and represents a major component of its program of expanded public transportation services.

Salci explained that during phase I, ETS will operate some vehicles in concentrated zones and others on longer trips. According to Rep. Edward E. Mahalak, two concentrated zones will include Romulus, Huron Township, Sumpter Township, Van Buren Township and Belleville.

With one bus assigned to serve Sumpter and Van Buren townships and Romulus, senior and handicapped citizens will be able to use ETS to travel to the Sumpter Medical Center, the Belleville business district, Annapolis Hospital, Wayne County General Hospital, and to shopping facilities in Romulus, Canton Township, Wayne and Westland, Mahalak explained.

Another bus will serve Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron townships. Senior and handicapped citizens in those communities can ride ETS to the Belleville business district, Sumpter Family Medical Center, Seaway Hospital, Riverside Osteopathic Hospital, Southland Mall, Southgate Mall, and Wyandotte General Hospital, Mahalak said.

Under the new ETS, for curb-to-curb service, area residents will telephone a dispatcher who sends a bus to the user for delivery to the desired location. Ride requests will be made on a reservation basis.

Fares on the new buses, which hold 10 to 12 persons and have spaces for two wheelchairs, will start at 50 cents for senior and handicapped passengers. The base fare of 50 cents will be good for up to six miles of travel in heavily populated areas of Wayne County and good for up to 12 miles in rural areas, Mahalak pointed out.

The base fare also includes free transfers to all regular SEMTA bus routes. As a special convenience, monthly SEMTACARD passes and discount tickets will also be available for fare payment.

The start of ETS will not prompt any changes in the existing Dial-A-Ride systems now operating in Trenton, Redford, and Harper Woods. The present Detroit Paratransit and Wayne ETS will be incorporated into one county-wide system during phase I.

Commenting on the new ETS, Mahalak said, "I am asking of the residents served by the bus service to avail themselves to the point way beyond our projection so we can demonstrate the need for more buses."

Noting that the energy crisis was pushing gasoline prices to new highs and that inflation has significantly increased the cost of automobiles and car repairs, Mahalak said, "People are turning to public transportation, and I am convinced they will do so much more in the future."

Following ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the five area locations, coffee and doughnuts will be served.

New ticket building for Metro Airport

A spacious, well-lighted, comfortable ticketing building for public ground transportation will soon be under construction at Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport, located in Romulus.

The building, a long-sought facility, will be located in front of the South Terminal, on the lower roadway, beneath the upper level bridge-roadway where departing passengers arrive and unload.

In approving the contract award to McCarthy & Smith, Inc., a Detroit general contractor, the Board of Wayne County Road Commissioners, operators of Metro Airport, noted this was the second time the project had been bid.

Joseph M. Herron, board chairman, said the award, made Thursday (March 22) was for $386,000. An earlier bid opening was rejected last August.

"When the ticketing building is completed (by the end of the year) travelers who use buses, limousines, or taxis will no longer have to wait at the curb or inside the terminal building," Herron said.

Plans call for travelers to enter the building, purchase their tickets and take comfortable seats while gazing through large windows to await their form of transportation. No private vehicles will be permitted in the area.

In addition to awarding the transportation building award, Vice-Chairman Freddie G. Burton noted that the airport recently opened a new 1,400-vehicle public parking lot along the airport's East Service Drive.

"The Board is attempting to keep up with the rising demand of the traveling public—and we're working on a new program that will nearly double our parking facilities in the next few years," Burton said.

GIFT BUYING ABROAD

Every traveler with any conscience at all is haunted by the knowledge that he must buy gifts for friends or family back home. Before you part with the foreign exchange, here are a few tips:

You're allowed to bring back a hundred dollars worth of goods, duty-free, so don't waste the privilege. Air mail back one gift per day to a different person on your list and keep its value under $10. This way you'll avoid duty as it's declared "gift" and you'll have a lighter suitcase during your trip in addition to giving yourself more leeway on that final $100 custom evaluation. I say "air mail" because it's positively unbelievable the way packages sent from abroad via surface can disappear along the route.

Remember that your concierge in the hotel can be a very good friend and that his judgment and advice can usually be relied upon. But always check the local export rules before buying if you find something special. You might not be allowed out of the country with it.

CP-80 Electric Grand YAMAHA

Yamaha announces the first full grand piano that you can carry with one hand.

Introducing the CP-80

Yamaha's new CP-80 is a full 88-key electric grand piano that offers both the sound and touch characteristics of an acoustic instrument.

Until now, the touring piano player has had to sit down to an unfamiliar instrument every time he has performed. The action, the sound of the borrowed piano was always new and uncertain. Also, many studios, clubs and stages didn't have room for a full-size grand. Moreover, when the acoustic piano had to be amplified, it was extremely difficult, if not impossible, to retain the true sound.

But Yamaha has changed all that.

The exciting new Electric Grand CP-80 has the sound and feel of a full-size grand piano. Yet its size and weight have been greatly reduced, making it easy to take it anywhere. Compact, sturdy and loaded with versatility, the Electric Grand combines the artistry of musical craftsmanship with the technical skills of electronic engineering.

Electronics

The Electric Grand was made to be amplified. To help capture its true acoustically created sound, Yamaha installed 88 independent piezoelectric pickups for the entire keyboard. The electronics section has permanently mounted pickup preamps, so you never have to worry about installation. You can get just the sound you want by using the three tone controls (BASS, MIDDLE, TREBLE). For quickly returning to "flat" response, the tone controls are detented in the center position. There is even a special tremolo with two out-of-phase outputs, so you can get rotary effects from a pair of speaker systems. All this, yet the CP-80 Electric Grand is an acoustic piano.

56 Employers attend

Career Day is success; RHS students enthusiastic

"Excellent", "Highly impressed", "Would like to return".

These were some of the comments made by speakers at the Romulus Senior High Career Day March 21. They were made, respectively, by Gerald E. Kiaheim, horticulture agent, Wayne County Coop Extension Service; Robert P. Martin, chief, Division of Natural Heritage, U.S. Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service; SFC Willie A. Dawson, U.S. Army Recruiting, United States Army.

Students attended four sessions to hear speakers of their occupational choice and gain information on various or related careers. Fifty-six speakers were in attendance ranging from American School of Travel to Xerox Corp., expounding on subjects from airline operations to X-ray technicians.

At 7:50 a.m., the speakers were greeted by the hospitality committee, which included the National Honor Society students. Packets were handed out and the guests were escorted to the Romulette Room, the school's restaurant. Soft music, candlelight, and tables set in groupings of four greeted the surprised guests as they were seated and served coffee, juice, and freshly baked goods.

Guests who met each other over occupation-type conversations, were all there for a common reason - to speak to Romulus senior high students on their particular career choice. At 8:25 a.m., speakers were escorted to their assigned classroom.

In the Career Opportunities Resource Center the guests also had the opportunity to view the array of occupational materials and observe the Michigan occupation interest survey computer.

During the sessions, teachers introduced guest speakers. Most careers were not "colored" to be the best or great, but good solid information was given to inquiring questions.

"This has been an enjoyable experience - well organized and effective. It's nice to see a positive side to public education, rather than the often negative aspects we see through the news media," said Stephen F. Crane, manager of Education Systems, M.I.S. Internations, Inc., who spoke on data processing.

Many students expressed positive feelings about the career day program.

"The computer science session was very helpful," exclaimed Bryan Butler, an 11th grade student. Patty Smith mentioned that she will pursue more information on becoming a veterinarian.

"I liked it and would like to have had more time in the sessions", David Clark expressed. Dave, who is in the 10th grade, attended the sessions on X-ray technician, airline operations, broadcasting and aviation.

Kevin LeVan, senior, wanted more information which will be available to him in the school's resource center. Two of the sessions Kevin attended were journalism and advertising.

Tenth grader Sandra Bozelak said that good advice was given and that the speakers were very truthful. "It was well worth my time. It helped me immensely. Thank you all for making this eye-opening experience possible to us."

The Career Day program culminated in a luncheon for the honored guests in the Romulette Room.

A standing rib roast was served to the guests. Culinary Arts students invited everyone to the salad bar for salad and fresh fruit. The rest of the menu included the roast, baked chicken, vegetable, boiled potatoes, fresh-baked rolls and fruit-topped tortes. During the luncheon, the Romulus Senior High 20-piece jazz band performed under the direction of Henry James, band instructor.

Karate champion

David S. Jones, of 6006 Columbus in Romulus, poses proudly between two karate trophies he won at a recent tournament held at Macomb County Community College. Jones, 25, has been studying the martial arts for the past eight months at the Coleman Community Center on Beverly Street, under the supervision of Willie Adams, a sixth degree black belt master from Detroit. The center offers classes on Wednesday and Friday between 6-7:30 p.m. to anyone five years of age and older. Jones, who holds a white belt (heavyweight), won the trophies for form and fighting.

County exec plan is pushed

A petition drive by a handful of Wayne County Commissioners, seeking to put the direct election of a county executive on the ballot, has gained momentum as civic groups and community officials added their support.

Meeting before civic leaders at the Dearborn Library Wednesday, Commissioners Mary Dumas (R-Livonia), William Joyner (D-Plymouth) and Alex Pilch (D-Dearborn-Dearborn Heights) said it was imperative that county electors vote on the issue directly and not wait for the creation of a charter commission to include it in a proposed new charter for Wayne County.

"We're going for the petition route rather than the charter route because it minimizes the chance of sabotaging the executive change and reduces the possibility of the executive power being watered down," Pilch asserted.

"Someone must be made responsible for the actions of the county," he added, "and under the present county home rule, there is no one responsible."

Chairman of the petition drive, Robert Beeny of Wayne, a past president of the Wayne Jaycees, has set a target date of July 4 to obtain 77,000 signatures. "Actually," he said, "we only require 65,000, but 77,000 will give us a comfortable margin."

Joyner, who represents the Belleville-Romulus area, estimates the cost of electing a charter commission and then conducting a charter referendum will amount to more than $1,200,000. "Direct election of an executive will cost approximately $800,000," he pointed out.

"The drive has already received the support of Rockwood, Canton Township, Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Jaycee members of Wayne, Plymouth and Canton, and Melvindale Councilman Michael Suiter", Beeny said. "Other organizations have taken the question before their boards for approval," he added.

Although there has been a shift in population to the suburbs, Dumas charged, a handful of Detroit Charter districts, patterned after present commissioner districts, could dictate charter changes and even bypass the creation of an executive post.

"At best," she observed, "it would probably be just a ceremonial position without teeth and what we need now is someone responsible for county spending."

The 1970 census divided the county into 27 districts of 100,000 population each. Presently Detroit districts have far less and out-county commissioners are representing from 10-20,000 more voters than the 1970 census calls for, Dumas said.

The need for an executive was put simply by Romulus community development director Patrick Hogan. When asked his opinion at the Wednesday meeting, he said: "County government is a laughing stock in our area. An executive will turn that around."

The sponsors were closely questioned by Kay Cushman, a member of the county League of Women Voters, who indicated some fear that the action of the three commissioners might result in a bitter feud between Detroit and out-county commissioners, but she agreed an executive is needed.

The county efficiency task force is expected to interview each of the three commissioners in its attempt to determine the validity of having an executive in charge of county affairs. Alternatives include a managerial type structure. Gov. William Milliken considers county reorganization a prerequisite in helping the county out of its current financial predicament.

Employers enjoy luncheon

Shown are some of the 56 speakers who attended Career Day March 21 at Romulus High School to give students an insight into various fields of employment. Students chose four sessions at which they were given information by speakers of occupational fields of their choice. Luncheon in the Romulette Room was highlighted by performance of 20-piece school jazz band under direction of Henry James.

MD month proclaimed

Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley has proclaimed March as Muscular Dystrophy Month and called upon local residents to support the 1979 March appeal by the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The annual drive actually will begin this year on May 15 and will extend to June 15. It will seek funds to support an all-out research attack against the crippling, muscle-wasting disease and to provide clinic and patient services.

Presently, some 250,000 Americans suffer from muscular dystrophy, most of them children, in whom it is nearly always fatal. Neither the cause of the disease nor an effective treatment for it has been found to date.

Volunteer chairman for the 1979 drive in Romulus is Miss Elvera Fischer. Residents wishing to aid the drive are asked to call "March Against Time" headquarters at 399-8800.

Revival scheduled

Romulus Baptist Chapel will hold revival services beginning April 1, at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. nightly through Sunday, April 8.

The chapel is located in Harrison Elementary School, 14701 Harrison, one block north of Eureka Road in Romulus. Guest speaker for the services will be the Rev. Tony Chastain, pastor of 10th Street Baptist Church, Palmetto, Fla.

Pastor Herbert Copeland said the church is participating in a state-wide evangelistic effort on the part of Southern Baptist congregations in Michigan and the North Central states. Evangelistic teams from across America are leading the churches in the revivals during the week.

Pastor Copeland cordially invites the public to come as his special guests to the nightly services.

Local horse group growing

By ALYCE BROWN

The horse will never recapture his role of major importance in American society, but he does play a role of importance in man's sporting and recreational interests.

Equestrian enthusiasm runs high in Wayne County with a horse population numbering approximately 6,000 according to Donald J. Juchartz, director of the Wayne County Cooperative Extension Service located in Wayne.

Aside from horse racing, the ownership, care and enjoyment of a horse is most often a family project. The youngsters join 4-H clubs while their parents seek membership in adult associations; however, both groups combine their efforts to encourage the proper use of horses and to promote activities throughout the year such as: trail riding, horse shows, county fair and educational and health clinics.

One such local organization is the Romulus Horsemen's Association. Founded in 1974 by Gail Blanchard, Charlotte McBride and Barbara Schultz as a citizen's interest group, they opposed what they called unreasonable animal ordinances in the City of Romulus.

By means of a door-to-door campaign, they gained support from local residents and through negotiations with city officials reached a satisfactory compromise on horse legislation.

The RHA has grown in size and activity. Club members maintain a busy schedule both organizing and participating in trail rides, parades and horse shows. Their monthly meetings often host impressive guest speakers and this month's meeting is no exception.

The meetings, held the third Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the Romulus City Hall, are open to the public. Horse enthusiasts interested in membership need not be residents of Romulus.

Fast work by police

Romulus man is arrested in Huron Twp. breakin

A Romulus man was one of two men arrested by Huron Township police at the scene of a breaking and entering early last Wednesday morning at a New Boston party store.

Arrested was Harold Bartok, 19, of Romulus, and a companion, Gerald Montour, 19, of Detroit. Both were charged with breaking and entering and possession of burglary tools, according to Huron Township Police Chief Joe Carney.

After arraignment later Wednesday morning in Romulus 34th

District Court, both men were lodged in the Wayne County Jail after failing to meet $5,000 bond each. They will appear for examination March 28 in the same court.

Carney said an alert neighbor called police about 12:25 a.m. to report pounding noises at the River Bend Party Store, 21021 Huron River Dr. Officers Dennis Anderson and Harold Ashby were dispatched to the scene.

Arriving at the party store, the officers found a large hole chopped in the south side of the building and heard people talking inside. They quickly arrested Bartok and Montour.

Carney said the two men evidently had used a sledge hammer found at the scene to smash their way into the building. He said a large quantity of beer and lunch meat and other merchandise was found in a pile near the hole in the wall.

No automobile was found at or near the party store and police surmise a waiting accomplice acting as driver had fled when they arrived to investigate.

State steelheaders see great season

Steelheaders skunked last fall should have a springtime bonanza with near-record run of the silvery fish returning to riverbed spawning grounds, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Last fall, steelhead runs were virtually non-existent even on usually productive streams, meaning most fish probably wintered in the Great Lakes," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

But this spring's snowmelt and expected rains should send nearly two million fish, averaging 10 pounds, into rivers listed on Auto Club's guide. This season could rival the 1976 record.

Because of the expected heavy runs across the state, the current state steelhead record of 26 lbs., 8 ozs., set in 1975, could be topped.

Fishermen can start the season in southwest Michigan and move north along the Lake Michigan coastline until runs peak, usually in late April.

Lake Huron's tributaries usually offer best steelheading from mid-April to mid-May, while Upper Peninsula anglers can concentrate on streams between mid-April and early June.

Southeast Michigan residents can count on best fishing in the St. Clair River from now until mid-April.

Auto Club advises anglers to learn regulations applying to rivers listed in its guide, as parts of some are restricted to fly fishing only. Other streams open after April 1 on or April 28, the general trout season opener.

The State Public Health Department has extended its warning that Lake Michigan steelhead may contain hazardous amounts of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs). It advises children and nursing mothers not to eat Lake Michigan steelhead. All others should consume no more than a half pound per week.

Further information on fishing rules and pollution dangers can be found in the DNR's 1979 Michigan Fishing Guide.

Walk views spring

"Spring Fever" can be cured by attending a family nature walk at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on April 8 at 2 p.m.

Park naturalist Bob Wittersheim will emphasize the sights, sounds and smells of early spring during the 1-hour walk.

The program is 'free', but vehicle entry permits are required.

Things that matter

Are prophecies valid?

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Features Syndicate

The psychics — including Jeane Dixon — didn't do so well in predicting events in 1978.

Dixon said in January 1978 that "a new pope will take office within the next four years but not in 1978. Pope Paul will surprise the world with his vigor." He died seven months later.

Other "leading psychics" quoted in The National Enquirer of Jan. 3, 1978, predicted: "Billy Graham will be knighted by Queen Elizabeth, but he will end the year in poor health." "Egyptian President Sadat will be assassinated." "Muhammad Ali will suffer a heart attack during a boxing match." "Scientists will find that Legionnaire's Disease was brought by UFO."

As for Jeane Dixon, her followers tend to be forgiving of her misses in view of what they point to as the significant bull's-eyes she has scored.

She is said to have had a vision of President Kennedy's assassination 11 years before the Dallas tragedy. She was standing in front of the statue of the Virgin Mary in St. Matthew Cathedral in Washington one morning in 1952.

"Suddenly," she says, "the White House appeared to me in dazzling brightness. The numerals 1-9-6-0 formed above the roof. An ominous dark cloud appeared ... Then I looked down and saw a young man, tall and blue-eyed, crowned with a shock of thick brown hair, quietly standing in front of the main door."

Dixon says she was "still staring at him when a voice came out of nowhere, telling me that this 'young man, a Democrat, to be seated as president in 1960, would be assassinated while in office."

The vividness of that moment stayed with Miss Dixon until November 1963, when President Kennedy was preparing to go to Dallas.

She felt so strongly that tragedy was waiting in the wings that she asked her friend Kay Halle, a Washington radio commentator who was close to Kennedy, to try to persuade the president not to go to Dallas.

He went, and the rest is history.

Dixon says the future is revealed to her in many different ways — divine revelation and telepathy being two of them.

Often, she says, "when I meet people and shake their hands, I feel vibrations. My fingers are super-sensitive, and many times a gentle touch enables me to pick up an individual's channel with God."

Dixon says that each person has his own individual channel of communication — "His own frequency" — with God.

"The signals from these channels are often so strong," she says, "that they reveal to me what happened to a person at an early age as well as what might happen to him until his last day on earth."

Dixon once gave me a psychic reading. It was in 1972.

She placed my hand in hers and touched the palm of my hand with the tip of the ring finger on the right hand. She told me that in seven years I was going to reach a "new, higher plateau" in life.

It is now 1979 — seven years later — and I am waiting. Will she be right or wrong?

Hal Lindsey, author of the best-selling book, "The Late Great Planet Earth" — now a movie — is another who deals in predicting the future. But his predictions are based on Bible prophecies.

Lindsey's thesis is that the short-range predictions of the Bible prophets were fulfilled in their own lifetimes or by the first century of the Christian era.

Therefore, because they "passed the test" of a true prophet, we can trust them on their long-range predictions, "which are being fulfilled in our time."

According to Lindsey, the prophet Ezekiel was "speaking of the final restoration of the Jews to the land of Palestine (which came to pass in 1948) when he said, 'For I will take you from among the nations and gather you out of all countries and bring you into your own land.'"

Lindsey regards it as amazing that the prophet Micah, who lived 700 years before the birth of Christ, predicted that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem (Micah 5:2).

Not all Bible scholars are sure, however, that Jesus was born in Bethlehem. Some suspect that it was Micah's "prophecy" alone which was responsible for the tradition regarding Jesus' birthplace.

Got your plates?

Time is running out for Michigan motorists who haven't purchased their 1979 license plates for passenger cars and motorcycles.

License plates are available at Secretary of State branch offices or at the 51 Automobile Club of Michigan offices. They must be displayed on cars and motorcycles by April 3.

To obtain license plates, motorists must present either the prepared renewal form mailed by the Department of State, the 1978 vehicle registration or certificate of vehicle title plus proof of public liability and property damage insurance.

Hospital to change program

Heritage Hospital, one of five Peoples Community Hospital Authority facilities, has asked the state for approval of an expansion and reorganization of the ambulatory surgery program.

The hospital is located at 24775 Haig, Taylor.

When the facility opened in 1977, a shell-in area adjacent to the operating room suite was left vacant. Now the hospital wishes to use this space as a pre-operative-post recovery ambulatory surgery holding unit.

The unit would contain dressing room, toilet, utility room, nursing station, locker spaces, and a procedure room. It would accommodate 10 patients receiving pre-operative and post-recovery services.

The project is estimated to cost $234,546 and would be completed in January 1980.

In keeping with federal regulations requiring state approval prior to change in service and capital expenditure Heritage Hospital has applied for a Certificate of Need. The application is on file with the Michigan Department of Public Health, division of Health Facility Planning and Construction.

A new historical museum?

It will be if the City of Westland and its Historical Commission get their wish. The city council Monday night authorized the mayor to draw up a purchase agreement for the building, located at 857 N. Wayne Road, as the site

City to buy vacant home as new historical museum

Westland history will be presented to the public at a new spot, at home at 857 N. Wayne Road, that will be purchased as the city's new historical museum. The City Council gave the go-ahead last week to have the city attorney draw up a purchase agreement to buy the home, which will cost an estimated $38,000. Although the down-payment — "front money" — will be paid by the city, that money will be repouced through a $40,000 state grant that has been awarded to Westland for historical purposes. As an amendment to a legislative statue, the grant has been held up in committee, explained Westland Mayor Thomas Taylor. But he said he has assurances from State Rep. Thomas Brown that the money should be released soon. When that happens, any money expended by the city general fund will be paid back. But the owner of the home wants to sell it now. The house has been vacant since last November. Taylor told the council that in recent months the house has been completely brought up to code, with electrical, sewer and water improvements, as well as installation of a new furnace. Historical Commission chairman Jo Johnson couldn't be happier with the council move. The commission has had its eye on that house as a good museum location for two years, but could never get enough money to buy it. She noted that because of the very good condition of the house, the commission should have no trouble moving in soon after the purchase details are worked out. Some wallpapering, painting and installation of an alarm system would seem to be the only immediate needs. The city does have a historical museum now, located on Ann Arbor Trail quite close to Edward Hines Drive. Although the building is more historically significant than the one on Wayne Road, it has caused many headaches for commission members. The location next to the parkway, a popular teen hangout, has caused alarm to the women working at the museum. The parkway has a bad reputation for drug trafficking, vandalism and rowdiness. The house on Wayne road, built in the 1870s or 1880s, will be better located in the center of the city, be near the high school, near central city park and city hall, and near senior citizens' center and high-rise apartments. The house "is the type of house lived in by early settlers in the area," Mrs. Johnson added. The historical museum on Ann Arbor Trail opened in the fall of 1974. The commission's next hope is to ask that some of the city's Community Development funds be used to purchase an adjacent lot to provide parking area for the museum. Members of the Historical Commission are Mrs. Johnson, Bethel Taylor, Joanne Williams, Eleanor Swiakowski and Jeannette Schumacher. Former members and volunteer workers who devote much time are Helen Brown and Mona Griggs.

Wayne High will host annual College Night

Plans are underway by the guidance department of Wayne Memorial High School for its annual College Night, slated for April 4. The program will be for college-bound ninth, 10th, 11th and 12th graders and interested parents in the Wayne Westland Community Schools. Some 40 representatives from colleges and universities will be on hand to provide information and answer questions about their institutions. The representatives also will discuss entrance requirements, tuition, work opportunities, scholarships and financial aids, degree requirements and life on campus. The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the high school's basement cafeteria. Jeannette Scroggins, consultant of the student financial aid department of the Michigan Department of Education, will speak on the topic of "Financial Aid Programs Can Help You Attend College". Items covered in her presentation will include Michigan scholarships and tuition grants, Legislative Merit Awards, Guaranteed Loan Program, Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program and the Tuition Differential Grant Program. Following the opening speech, students will be able to talk to at least three college representatives during three 35-minute sessions, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Speakers and their assigned rooms will be listed in a program available at the door. Institutions of higher learning that will have representatives at College Night include Albion, Alma and Alpena Community colleges, the Center for Creative Studies, Central and Concordia Lutheran Junior colleges, Detroit Institute of Technology, Eastern Michigan University, Ferris State College, the General Motors Institute, Henry Ford Community, Hillsdale, hope, Kalamazoo and Lake Superior State colleges, Lawrence Institute of Technology, Madonna, Marygrove and Mercy colleges, Michigan State, Michigan Technological, Northern Michigan and Northwestern Michigan universities, Northwood Institute, Oakland University, Olivet, Saginaw Valley, Schoolcraft, Siena Heights, Spring Arbor and Suomi colleges, the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor and Dearborn, University of Detroit, Washtenaw Community and Wayne County Community colleges, Wayne State and Western Michigan universities and the University of Toledo.

Kelsey-Hayes offers warranty on module

A 5-year warranty on the computer control module of its skid control system is being offered by Kelsey-Hayes. Effective April 1, 1979, the warranty covers defects in materials or workmanship, when properly maintained in normal service, and states that the company will, at its option, repair or replace without charge, F.O.B. Brighton, Mich., any computer control module sold by Kelsey-Hayes, if found on examination by the company to be defective within the warranty period. Complete terms of the warranty are available upon request. The warranty covers all computer control modules sold on or after April 1, as well as those installed on trucks, tractors or trailers sold on or after that same date. Existing manufacturers' warranties will have priority. However, beyond the manufacturer's warranty period and on up to five years from date of sale, the Kelsey-Hayes warranty will be in effect. "This unique warranty program," said L. E. Pulkownik, sales manager, Kelsey-Hayes Heavy Duty Systems Division, "reflects our confidence and dedication to the effectiveness of the skid control system, as well as the quality of our computer control module, heart of the system, which we feel is the best on the market."

ARE YOU AWARE

The Return of the Lord Shall be as a Thief in the Night?

I THESSALONIANS 4:2—For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the Night. 4:3—For when they shall say, Peace and Safety: Then sudden destruction cometh upon them as travail upon a Woman with Child; and they shall not escape. 4:4—But ye brethren are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. 4:5—Ye are the Children of the light and the Children of the day; we are not of the night, nor of darkness. THESSALONIANS 4:14—Now we exhort you brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feebleminded. Support the weak, be patient toward all men. 4:15—See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men. 4:16—Rejoice evermore. 4:17—Pray without ceasing. THESSALONIANS 1:17—And to you who are troubled, rest with us when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from Heaven with His mighty Angels. 1:10—When he shall be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because of our testimony among you was believed) in that day. MATTHEW 24:13—But He shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come.

Ride him, Cowboy

The best 90 professional rodeo contestants head for the Pontiac Silverdome this Sunday for the fourth annual Longhorn World Championship Rodeo and more than $40,000 in prize money. They will be competing in six sanctioned contests for world championship points, and it is a sure bet that the most popular contest will be bull riding. It was at this rodeo in 1976 and again in 1978 where two of the highest marked bull riders for the entire year were turned in. In 1976 that world champion bull rider, Rob McDonald, conquered the previously unconquered bull, named Bob, for an astounding 89 out of a possible perfect score of 100 points. More than 50,000 fans are expected to again watch the "World's Biggest 1-Day Rodeo" performance at 1:30 p.m. Sunday. Seats for the lower Silverdome level are all reserved at $7.50; the upper level is on a general admission basis at $6. Children 12 years of age and under are half price for all seats with tickets available at the Silverdome.

When pine was...

Take a look back to the time "When Pine Was King" during a special evening program to be conducted at the nature center of Kensington Metropark near Milford on April 5 at 7 p.m. Pines, peavies and Paul Bunyan all combined to make the years 1850-1900 an interesting and important era in Michigan's history. Using slides, discussion and some "tall tales", naturalist Dave Moiilanen will provide a glimpse of Michigan's 19th century logging industry and of the lumberjacks who brought "daylight to the swamp."

Registration is required for this 1½-hour program. Vehicle entry permits also are required.

SEEK OUT A PROFESSIONAL!

"It is a truism in the legal profession that the vast majority of widows lose a substantial part of an uncontrolled bequest within seven years." So states Ms. Theresa Morse in her book, "Life is for the Living." She points out that a team of experts (a lawyer, accountant, and investment counselor) can provide the professional advice that well-meaning friends and relatives simply cannot. All of us may need some or all of that "Team." Ms. Morse counsels a widow, especially, to seek out a lawyer with whom she can communicate frankly and comfortably. He must be "right" for her, and he and the other counselors must earn her confidence and trust. Only through this trust can they help chart her short and long range courses of action.
So, too must we earn your trust. You should be comfortable discussing your funeral wishes with us. As with your lawyer, we conduct our affairs on a professional level. We want you to consider us as members of your "team," ready to help make pre-planned arrangements or provide information in advance of need.

County seeks state law prohibiting threat of jail

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners is urging the State Legislature to pass a law prohibiting courts from using the threat of jail to compel members of legislative bodies to vote in line with court orders.

The plea is contained in a resolution adopted by the County legislators in support of the Van Buren Township trustees who were jailed twice by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Charles Kaufman for refusing to approve a sewer permit for a proposed mobile home development.

After spending a week in jail, four of the township trustees were released March 9, when they agreed to abide by a pending Court of Appeals ruling on the issue. A fifth trustee who has a history of heart trouble, spent the week as a Sheriff's prisoner at Wayne County General Hospital where he was taken after complaining of chest pains shortly after being jailed.

Written by County Board Chairman Richard E. Manning, the resolution charges there is a growing trend toward judges ordering members of legislative bodies jailed for "voting their consciences" and describes the trend as "a new form of tyranny."

The resolution urges the State Legislature to pass a law to provide that "no court shall issue its order nor shall any sheriff or peace officer enforce any order of any court that seeks to compel any person acting in a legislative capacity to cast his vote either positively or negatively under threat of jail."

The resolution also asks Gov. William Milliken to issue an executive order nullifying the "unlawful" order from Judge Kaufman. It also asked the Circuit Court bench to "inquire into the propriety" of Kaufman's actions.

The resolution also asked the State lawmakers to pass a special bill to reimburse the Van Buren trustees for their economic losses "as well as for the indignities suffered" in being jailed.

Kaufman originally jailed all seven township elected officials last December. They were released within 36 hours after the Court of Appeals ruled Kaufman had not followed proper procedure. The Court of Appeals upheld the second jailing. Two trustees were released within hours after agreeing to sign the sewer permit under protest.

In refusing the permit, the township board charged that the hook-up to the Ypsilanti Township sewage treatment plant would aggravate pollution of Belleville Lake, while hook-up to a more distance township sewer line, while more expensive, would avoid the pollution problem.

The resolution was adopted at a March 15 meeting.

EST makes debut

Elderly and handicapped residents of Romulus, Huron Township, Sumpter Township, Belleville and Van Buren Township will be the major beneficiaries of a new countywide curb-to-curb bus system which will begin operation April 2.

Ten new buses, together with 11 buses that currently are in service in Wayne County, will be used to develop the first phase of the countywide Wayne ETS. Nineteen vehicles will be used in service, and two vehicles will be used for maintenance reserve.

During Phase 1 the Wayne ETS will operate some vehicles concentrated in zones and others serving longer trips on a county-wide basis. Two concentrated zones will serve the Romulus, Huron Township, Sumpter Township, Belleville and Van Buren Township areas of Wayne County.

One bus will serve Sumpter and Van Buren Townships and the City of Romulus. Senior and handicapped citizens will be able to use the county-wide system to travel to the Sumpter Family Medical Center, the Belleville central business district, Annapolis Hospital, Wayne County General Hospital and to shopping facilities in Romulus, Canton Township, Wayne and Westland.

One bus will serve Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron townships. Senior and handicapped citizens living in this area will be able to use the Wayne ETS system to travel to the Belleville central business district, the Sumpter Family Medical Center, Seaway Hospital, Riverside Osteopathic Hospital, Southland Mall, Southgate Mall and Wyandotte General Hospital.

For curb-to-curb service, a rider telephones a dispatcher who sends a vehicle to the user for transport to the desired location. Ride requests must be made on a reservation basis.

Fares for Wayne ETS service will start at 50 cents for elderly and handicapped passengers. The base fare of 50 cents will be good for up to six miles of travel in heavily populated parts of the county and up to 12 miles in rural areas. That base fare also includes free transfers to all regular SEMTA bus routes.

Monthly SEMTACARD passes and discount tickets also will be available for fare payment.

The 11 vehicles which presently comprise the Nankin Transit Commission fleet will remain with the Nankin jurisdiction and will continue to serve the communities of Canton Township, Westland, Wayne, Garden City and Inkster.

Ceremonies to introduce the new Wayne ETS system and new buses which will be used in the system have been planned for April 6. Residents invited to attend the official ceremonies in their area.

The time and locations are:

- 10 a.m., Romulus City Hall, 11111 S. Wayne Road, Romulus; — 11:15 a.m., Huron Township Hall, 37290 Huron River Drive, New Boston; — 1 p.m., Sumpter Municipal Hall, 23483 Sumpter Road, Sumpter; — 2 p.m., Belleville City Hall, 6 Main St., Belleville; and — 3 p.m., Van Buren Township Hall, 46425 Tyler Road, Van Buren Township.

safety factor or utmost importance to the entire transportation industry.

"We know that Kelsey's skid control minimized the tendency to jackknife. In most cases, it shortens stopping distance and increases the driver's ability to maintain vehicle control in panic stop situations because it prevents locked wheels and reduces trailer hop."

"The design, quality, installation and maintenance program backing our skid control systems," Pulkownik said "insure the unparalleled reliability of the product. With more than 500,000 units installed, there have been less than 0.5 percent returns of computer control modules."

Ed Board filing date is April 9

April 9 is the deadline for filing petitions to run for a seat on the Wayne-Westland Board of Education.

Candidates must file their nominating petitions by 4 p.m. that day to assure a place on the June 11 election ballot.

Petitions may be picked up at the board offices during business hours. Hopefuls must collect a minimum of 20, but no more than 55 signatures on the petitions.

There are three vacancies on the board this year. All three now are filled by persons who were appointed by the board, so there are no incumbents who were elected by the people. All three appointed incumbents — Kenneth Marshall, Donald Rusnock and Mildred Batterson — are expected to seek election.

All three positions will not be up for grabs in the same election, however. Only two of the board seats are for the full 4-year term. (Although Robert Reichard and Agnes Greene both resigned, their terms would have expired in June anyway.)

Those two positions will be filled through one ballot, with the two highest vote getters winning the 4-year terms.

There is only one year remaining in the other board race. The term is the unexpired term of Vincent Pettipren, ousted from the board last year because of an alleged incompatibility between the board job and his full-time job as Taylor school superintendent. The alleged conflict has since been eliminated by state legislation allowing the dual roles.

Candidates hoping to serve the one-year remaining in that term must file their petitions to run in that contest specifically, separate from the race for the other two 4-year terms, explained Lorraine Roulo, elections supervisor for the district.

Mrs. Roulo explained another important aspect if you plan to circulate petitions to run for office. First of all, only registered voters can circulate petitions. Also, you may only circulate petitions in the city in which you live. Wayne residents can collect signatures of Wayne residents, Westlanders of Westland residents.

Once the nominating petitions are turned in, the election workers check the voter eligibility of those signing them. Also, potential candidates have until 4 p.m. April 12 to withdraw from the race.

Editorial opinions

Easter Seal Tourney

We at Associated Newspapers were particularly pleased and gratified by Western Wayne County's response to the recently past Easter Seal Telethon.

Presented as the one truly all-around charitable organization in the nation, the Easter Seal annual fundraising drive again attracted the large and small contributors who represent the very best of what our system and way-of-life is all about.

And as usual, Wayne County provided much of the needed funds, over $235,000.

It was with a great deal of satisfaction that Associated Newspapers announced that it too was anxious to be a 'good neighbor,' and would join in the fight to raise funds for this worthwhile cause.

Therefore, on Sept. 8, 1979, the Associated Newspapers, in cooperation with local Rotary Clubs, will sponsor the First annual Easter Seal Invitational Golf Tournament. All proceeds going to Easter Seals.

The tournament, to be held at the Lake of the Woods Golf Course in Ypsilanti Township, will provide area golfers a chance to play a 'round' with local and national celebrities.

Some of the expected notables include: Governor William Milliken, Senate Majority Leader William Faust, and other area elected officials, as well as Ray Lane, Bob Allison, Sony Elliot, and many more. Also invited was Judge Charles Kaufman.

Watch the pages of your paper for further details, and if you wish to make your reservation now, please contact the editor, Associated Newspapers, 35540 W. Michigan Ave., Wayne, Mich. 48184.

We hope to make this event an annual affair that everyone will want to become involved in.

Inflation

Government credibility sank to new lows last week when the Commerce Department announced that 'Soaring profits were the cause of our current double digit inflation.'

While it's certainly true that increased corporate profits do, to some extent, influence the national inflation rate, since those profits are derived from increased costs, the implication that that is even a significant cause, is nothing but more government 'smoke.'

As every student of economics has learned: "The more you have, the less it is worth." And when you are dealing with dollars, only the federal government can speed up their presses when they run short.

For too long, the federal government has sought a convenient excuse to obscure the real cause, but it is government, and government alone that must shoulder the ultimate responsibility for inflation.

For centuries, government currency has risen and fallen in value.

In the short span of only 19-years (1779-1796) France went from a slowly developing country — with no paper money — to economic chaos, following a flood of government printed paper of ever declining value.

In Germany in the 1920s, the world witnessed another example of the results of government printing presses running wild.

In the beginning, One Mark was worth about 30 cents and would buy a loaf of bread. Near the end, that same loaf of bread cost 10,000 Marks.

For every new dollar that is printed, the dollar in your wallet declines in value, unless of course, the value of the dollar is guaranteed by gold or some other redeemable commodity.

Today the dollar's value is not guaranteed.

And government presses are running wild.

Corporate profits indeed!

Kemp-Roth bill

Providing taxpayers — both corporate and individual — with more of their own income will benefit the economy and the government as well.

Economist Norman Ture estimates that in the first year alone Kemp-Roth would create 2.1 million new jobs; private investment would increase by $90 billion, and the gross national product would increase $175 billion.

Irving Kristol, New York University professor and contributor to the Wall Street Journal, points out that the bill — named for its sponsors, Rep. Jack Kemp (R., N.Y.) and Sen. William Roth (R., Del.) — "would reduce federal income-tax rates by about 30 percent over a three-year period and 'inflation proof' the tax law by adjusting tax rates to allow for the rate of inflation."

"As a result," Kristol points out, "federal tax receipts would fall much less than the drastic cuts in rates might suggest." Historically, in fact, tax receipts have increased within two years of a tax cut.

In contrast, when the tax on capital gains was increased in 1969, government revenues from this tax declined steadily.

Comments Rep. Kemp: "If you tax something you get less of it. If you subsidize something, you get more of it. In America, we tax work, growth, investment, employment, savings and productivity while subsidizing nonwork, consumption, welfare and debts."

Legislation to limit taxes and or spending, is pending in almost every state. Taxpayers have also voiced their concern to their national legislators.

Tax cuts of some description are certainly in the wind.

The issue, as Kristol sees it, "is whether to cut taxes minimally and belatedly, as a reaction to popular resentment, or whether to cut tax rates massively now to stimulate the kind of growth that will curb inflation, and increase government revenues to balance government expenditures."

It seems to us that little more can be said on the subject of taxes and tax reform.

Only one question remains:

When will Washington get the message?

Editor's Log

"Let the buyer beware...."

beware... beware... beware..."

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

The two-year nightmare is almost over, but the scars left are still painful. And two formerly happy people are confirmed pessimists.

The cause of their transformation was the callous dedication to the pursuit of the 'buck' by someone they had trusted, but shouldn't have. Since that day in Rome thousands of years ago when the world's very first merchant took advantage of his customer, the principle of "let the buyer beware" became the universal rule of commerce.

In the years since, legislators the world over have spent considerable time meditating on the problem and seeking solutions. But, still none have come.

Perhaps, if a permanent solution is ever found that would mandate honesty in business transactions, that solution most surely will have to provide some method for changing one of man's most basic flaws — greed.

While able to encourage honesty, today laws cannot outlaw dishonesty. And since that's the case, shame on Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of Canton Township for forgetting.

No longer able to maintain their large home in the suburbs, the Lewis' decided to purchase a mobile home.

During the long ordeal which began with that purchase from Westland's Village of Homes, and has not yet ended, the Lewises have: been threatened with eviction by Holiday Park Estates owner Sheldon Futernick; had their new mobile home torn apart; been threatened with eviction by the park manager; had their water pipes freeze; their floors buckle; their drains leak; frost form on interior walls due to insufficient insulation; been threatened with eviction; ignored by Skyline Corporation, the builder of their home; had their rent increased; been refused a 6-month lease illegally; been threatened with eviction; helped form a homeowners association; and have received an eviction notice.

This might be an appropriate place to ask: What were local officials doing while all this was taking place?

Answer: Nothing!

While the Canton Township building officials were busy claiming no legal responsibility for the conditions they conceded were unsafe, the Lewises were researching Michigan law relative to mobile home owner rights.

What did they find?

Right! Nothing.

It seems that the authority that does exist for the protection of mobile home owners has been put in the hands of the very people who were now causing the problems — the Michigan Mobile Home Commission — consisting of mobile home park owners and dealers.

This commission, created by Gov. Milliken, to resolve the very problems which its members often created for their tenants, has 11 members. You guessed it! Eight of the 11 are dealers or park owners.

For the Lewises the battle is not yet over.

But, for hundreds of others, either too old, too tired, or just too timid, the reality of mobile home living came too late.

Unscrupulous dealers. Equally unscrupulous park owners. And too often, unscrupulous dealer-owners lead to unscrupulous business practice that has cost many, much.

Looking back on the experiences of the Lewis', perhaps they should have suspected something at the very beginning when Futernick moved their 'brand new' home onto one of his sites at his Holiday Park Estates, without their knowledge. They had hoped to have it located in the Dearborn area.

Perhaps, they should have insisted that it be moved to a site of their choice, but again, perhaps they should have also remembered the first rule of commerce, "Let the Buyer Beware."

Tax relief and tax credits

By THOMAS H. BROWN
State Representative
37th District

PROPERTY TAX RELIEF

As property values have increased, property taxes have become a much greater burden. For this reason, the State Legislature has provided an ongoing property tax relief program since the early 1970s.

Last year approximately 1.2 million families received state property tax relief totaling $306 million. But, every year thousands of eligible taxpayers fail to file for the relief.

There are six property tax relief programs, five of which are very specialized.

The five special programs include property tax relief for the blind, totally disabled, quadriplegic and paraplegic persons, as well as eligible veterans. The eligibility requirements and benefits are different for each program, but if you suspect you may be eligible, please contact my office to make sure.

The more widely used relief programs are for senior citizens and general taxpayers.

Senior citizens receive 100 percent relief of their property taxes that exceed specified percentages of their household income. For example, senior households with income of $6,000 are reimbursed for property taxes in excess of $210 or 3.5 percent of their household income. Lower income seniors are given more generous relief as their household income falls below $6,000.

General property taxpayers are also eligible for substantial relief based on their income and level of property taxes. If property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of your household income, the state will reimburse you for 60 percent of the excess payments.

All of these property tax relief programs are part of the state income tax filing procedure. When you file for state income tax, you may be eligible to claim a property tax credit. If you are not required to file a state income tax return, you can still receive property tax relief by requesting a form from the treasury department in Dearborn, phone 256-3512, or my office in Lansing, (517) 373-1706. I encourage you to file early and avoid lengthy delays.

1979 HOME HEATING TAX CREDIT

The home heating assistance program that the legislature and Governor Milliken have recently approved will be in effect for one year only. It replaces the energy cost assistance program which expired on August 31, 1978. The program is designed to distribute $38 million to 470,000 low income households in the state. Both renters and homeowners will be eligible.

To apply for a home heating assistance tax credit, you must fill out a property tax credit form. Specifically, if you are 65 years of age or older you must fill out form MI-1040CR-1. Most other persons should fill out form MI-1040CR-4.

This is the same form you use if you apply for a homestead property tax credit. If you are a senior citizen, these forms will be sent to you if you have applied for property tax credit before. Otherwise, you can get a form from any department of the treasury office or post office.

Below is a sample of how you will figure out the amount of your credit.

- (1) — Decide how many exemptions you can claim. Each person in the household
- (2) — You have liquid assets (savings, cash, bonds, stocks, and securities) amount to $30,000 or more. (An exception may be made if you are a senior citizen and have sold your home in the last 24 months. See filing instructions for more information.)
- (3) — You are a full-time student and are claimed as a dependent by another person.
- (4) — You have not maintained a home in Michigan for at least 6 months in 1978.
- (5) — Your household income is more than the limits set in the filing instructions.

Gordonier progress

EDITOR:

I am enclosing a copy of a letter I recently received from Dr. John Porter on behalf of the State Board of Education.

It is rewarding to receive recognition that our students are improving. Of course much of the credit must also go to parents who are taking an increased interest in the study habits of their youngsters. Hopefully this will be but one step in a cooperative effort on the part of our local board of education, the school staff, and parents to put pride back into our school system.

Van Buren Five

EDITOR:

So much has been written about THE VAN BUREN FIVE being sent to jail — about the wide spread support from the grass roots people all over this State and from out of State — from as far as CALIFORNIA.

DECISIONS — DECISIONS — DECISIONS! THE TOWNSHIP ELECTED OFFICIALS made a decision. The Judge made a decision on the officials' decision. The People made a decision on the Judge's decision to support the principle that the elected officials were standing for.

This reminds me of another decision made eighty one years ago. In 1898 this country attacked the Spanish causing the Spanish-American War.

Henry David Thoreau, believing this war to be illegal and immoral, refused to pay his taxes. Therefore a Judge so ruled the law fit to send Thoreau to jail.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, a great friend of Thoreau was appalled that his friend — author of Walden's Pond — was in jail.

Emerson visited Thoreau in jail and after seeing the pit of pits of the lowest form of human habitat asked his friend a question.

"HENRY, WHAT ARE YOU DOING IN HERE?" TO WHICH THOREAU REPLIED, "RALPH WHAT ARE YOU DOING OUT THERE?"

Log was great

EDITOR:

Several of my neighbors have called to ask if I had read your article entitled "Dear Senator Levin", and expressed their enjoyment of the article.

I admit I have been a real "lemon" around the house of late, so you can imagine my good husband's amazement when I suddenly burst forth with a whooping, unlady like "guffaw" while reading your article.

My husband recovers somewhat from his state of shock, and comments thoughtfully that that's the first time he's heard me laugh so spontaneously since that day, in the K-Mart store, when I spotted the bottle of Farah Fawcett shampoo with vitamins and minerals.

As I am writing this, my husband has donned his jacket and left the house. I assume he is heading for the K-Mart to purchase a bottle of Farah Fawcett shampoo with vitamins and minerals and a scrapbook.

So keep them coming, Mr. Fassett, and with my healthy hair and my editor's log scrapbook, I just might cancel my reservation for the flight over the coo coo's nest.

You say it's a jungle out there? Well, it's a jungle out here too, and if you don't believe me, come on out and I'll show you. It's right here where our parks are supposed to be.

Sorry about your Vic Tanny card. We could invite you over for a peppy game of tennis (table, that is), except that our club house is not yet completed (in fact, it hasn't been started), and you could dampen your tobacco a bit in our pool, but, it hasn't been started yet either (sorry 'bout that). But if you can hang in there a couple'a years...

Please excuse my poor typing, my typewriter is also br'k'n.

Congratulations

Dear Principal:

On behalf of the State Board of Education, I congratulate you and your teaching staff. Your students showed improved performance on the 1978-79 Michigan Educational Assessment Program test. Not only has the percentage of students attaining 75 percent or more of the objectives increased, the percentage attaining less than 24 percent has decreased.

Sometimes we tend to concentrate on the problems of the educational community. This letter is intended to acknowledge achievement and to reinforce student and teacher efforts which have succeeded.

I ask you to accept our congratulations on the accomplishments of your students and indicate to the members of your staff and the citizens of your community that you have reason to be proud.

Sincerely,
John W. Porter

Why a dime?

EDITOR:

You're log on "Can you spare a dime" sounds pathetic.

Your rationale is right — but asking for such pittance is not even scriptural.

First, Holy writings tells us to "ask largely so you may receive an abundance" — also "you have little because you ask little".

Why don't you ask Levin for something worthwhile. You have just as much chance of getting something first class as you do the lousy dime.

"Mooooooooother!"

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

I was standing in the middle of the bedroom trying to get the zipper unstuck in the middle of my back, when the door opened and my youngest kid said, "What are you doing?"

Without looking up I said I was glad she was home and would she please unstuck my zipper.

"Go ahead, Missy," she said, "I have to go get something."

"Who's Missy?" I shouted after her, but before I could turn around a pair of cold little hands were at my back and the struggle began between the stuck zipper and Missy, a total stranger I had never heard of, and unless she could fix the zipper, would never see.

"Mom," my youngest said from across the hall. "When did you first fall in love?"

"For heaven's sake," I muttered. "Why don't you come in here and help Missy get me out of this dress."

"Oh, I can do it," Missy said in a determined little voice. "Lisa has to find out something for us."

"Mom, when did you first fall in love?" my kid shouted again.

"When I was three years old with a traveling evangelist who stayed at our house," I yelled just as I heard the zipper give and I was free. Standing there with the zipper in her hand was a blond girl whose eyes were as big as the moon.

"Did HE know?" she breathed.

"Oh, I'm sure he did," I answered. "After all I sat on his lap the whole time he was there. He kept kissing the top of my head. It was really a very meaningful relationship."

"Mother... you're pulling our leg. Now really, when did you really, truly fall in love?" my youngest fell in the door and threw herself across my bed. "Was Dad the first person you ever loved?"

"That's right," I told her. "I waited twenty-eight years for him to come into my life. I never looked at anyone else between the evangelist and your father." "Mooooooooother!"

Thinking I should thank Missy for her work with the zipper I sat down on the bed and promised to listen to them if they had something they needed to tell me.

"We have to write a paper about falling in love," they said. "And we don't know where to begin."

"Oh that's easy," I said. "First off you should determine just exactly what is the most important requisite in the person you want to marry."

Both girls puckered up their foreheads and thought.

"I've got it," my youngest shouted as she bounded off the bed. "He should definitely be a man! And after that... who cares?"

On the Brighter Side

Getting the Treatment

By JIM BRADLEY

If you have a headache, don't even think of going there.

Or if you want a quiet, secluded place to dine in a romantic atmosphere, forget it!

But if you want an exciting, unique, noisy, laugh-a-minute time — then it's the best spot in town.

I'm speaking of Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour where my wife and I took two 11-year-old girls Sunday evening for a treat. We got the treat — but we also got a treatment. And you who have spooned ice cream at Farrell's know exactly what I'm talking about.

I don't know how I got included in the trip (I really do — my wife hates to drive), but Pansy was treating two girls in her Sunday School class for winning a contest involving attendance and memorizing Bible verses.

We had originally planned to go later this week. However, when every night seemed booked up, she said sweetly before Sunday evening service, "How about taking the girls tonight after church?"

I told her I would be glad to go after church. And after hearing the evening sermon, I was glad I had been so cooperative. Otherwise, I would have had a guilty conscience — and no one needs to drag one of those around. (Of course, some people wouldn't know what a guilty conscience was if they had one — they'd probably think they had indigestion!)

So, we had Laurie and Brook jump in the car and we started over the ice-covered roads to Farrell's Ice Parlour on Telegraph Road near Schoolcraft. The two-inch snow became a sheet of ice as the heavy traffic packed it down into a slippery glaze.

A few doubts crept into my mind as I drove down icy Ford Road toward Telegraph. I began to have second thoughts about going and felt perhaps another night might be better — especially on dry roads. However, that twinge of conscience prodded me once more and I decided we'd better keep going.

The pair of 6th grade girls in the back seat carried on their own animated conversation while Pansy and I discussed other matters. Like the cars that had slid into the ditch from the icy roads. But the sidelined vehicles were of little concern to the young girls who seemed to have young men on their minds. At least I overheard the name of one or two boys as they discussed their latest heart-throbs. Entering Farrell's, we were greeted with a sign that read, "Our handsome, loyal, thrifty, trustworthy, honest manager or his able assistant will seat you as soon as possible." I was curious to see this unique person but I didn't see any such animal. It must have been "his able assistant" who seated us. (At least the girl looked able).

Passing an aisle with a street sign labeled Candy Lane and Food Ave., we were seated in a nearby booth. A lovely waitress approached our booth and said, "My name is Diane and I will be your waitress." Just about that time there was a loud banging on a bass drum. Lights began to flash on and off and teenage waiters and waitresses began yelling and running off in all directions.

A clanging of bells preceded the cry of "Here's a Farrell's Zoo" and a boy and a girl ran through the restaurant carrying a gigantic bowl of ice cream on a stretcher with a hole cut in the middle. In another section a group of good-looking teenage employees dressed in straw hats sang happy birthday to some bemused soul.

All I know is I was having a hard time finding a quiet spot after a tiring day. Just when I would start to relax, here would come some rambunctious, vocal employees running back and forth, banging tambourines on their hips and yelling some outlandish commands.

The teenage waiters were dressed in yellow straw hat, white shirt and red apron, while each young waitress was garbed in black and white striped blouse, yellow straw hat, black skirt and (gasp!) a garter on her leg.

During all the exciting racket, Laurie and Brook combined to consume a "Pig's Trough", a large oblong dish of ice cream and bananas. Although the two girls shared the Pig's Trough, our waitress Diane came over with two ribbons which read, "I made a pig of myself at Farrell's"

"Normally we just give these awards to those who eat a Pig's Trough all by themselves," she explained.

Well, Pansy and I only managed to down a simple banana split and didn't win a ribbon. But we left the noisy, drum-pounding, tambourine-ringing, bell-clanging, straw-hat-wearing, garter-snapping bunch of wild teenagers dressed in turn-of-the-century garb.

And I won't say that I'm anti-social or dislike rambunctious, devil-may-care teenagers. But I actually felt a sense of relief as I started my car and headed back out onto the treacherous, icy highway.

Are we ready for 1984?

Do we really want 1984 to come? We might not be ready. By an unfortunate coincidence, Orwell's notorious year crops up just when the Soviet Union could catch us short-handed. The early eighties — the time frame covered by SALT II — may see the Soviets achieving an edge over the United States in strategic capabilities.

Coming too soon for long-range development programs already on the boards, and new remedies requiring long lead times, the next thousand days could find the West unexpectedly vulnerable.

What are the alternatives?

If SALT II is rejected by the U.S. Senate we hardly want a panicky, scrambling arms race in which we'd be at a disadvantage. Obviously, we would need to operate from a position of strength. But that's just what the next few years are programmed to deny us.

According to a book just released by the National Strategy Information Center, there are feasible short term options available to the U.S. Strategic Options For The Early Eighties, What Can Be Done?, by William R. Van Cleave of the University of Southern California and W. Scott Thompson of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts, presents the research of the Strategic Alternatives Team, an independent group of leading scientists and strategists.

The Team's work is based on two premises: the probable Soviet edge over the United States in the next half decade; and the certainty that there must be something we can do. They reject the view of most administration officials, who believe that a Soviet advantage during the early eighties is inevitable regardless of what the U.S. does.

Doing something is the whole idea. Stressing urgency, the quick-fix study suggests a range of short term options for meeting immediate, or almost immediate dangers. According to Van Cleave and Thompson, "the immediate problem is that, even if the U.S. government should now decide to embark upon major programs to redress the deteriorating balance, there could still be a threatening peak of relative Soviet strategic power during the first half of the eighties. . . We must be able to avert the danger during this interim period."

Some quick-fix suggestions: speed up programs already underway (as we did twenty years ago with Minuteman and Polaris); bring cancelled programs back to life (the B-1 for example); adapt new uses for present weapons (for instance, moving strategic bombers to bases further inland, or adding parallel runways to existing air fields); and working better with our allies.

The quick-fix idea is characterized by "the ability to achieve something worth doing in a short time, whether it be temporary or long term, a major program or a variety of small innovations," write Van Cleave and Thompson.

While not necessarily favoring one option over another, the Team agrees on two points: there are short term remedies available; their number and utility are reduced as time passes.

Proponents of SALT II seem to view the world a little less than realistically.

To them, political compromise and uneasy reassurances provide the safest baggage on the rocky road just ahead. Since we're all traveling together, I'd like to think we were a little better prepared.

The quick-fix suggestions are timely and sensible and deserve serious consideration.

Guide lists travel-study programs

If a three-week visit to Japan for a crash course in cooking — and eating — the foods of that country is not exactly your cup of tea, a 6-week safari through Kenya to study East African wildlife might be more to your taste. Or maybe it would be a month in Denmark, sharpening your gold and silversmithing skills, or several weeks in Austria, absorbed by the music of the great Viennese masters.

These adventures are not sheer fantasy. They are among 351 international travel-study programs described in "World Study and Travel for Teachers," a 64-page guide published by the American Federation of Teachers (AFT). The 1979 edition lists exciting educational opportunities in 87 countries and territories throughout the world. Some are summer programs; some are conducted year-round. Most of them are sponsored by American educational institutions and organizations and many offer the chance to earn graduate or undergraduate credits. Although the title indicates that the guide was designed with teachers in mind, one does not have to be a teacher to take part in many of the programs. Other applicants with appropriate academic credentials also can earn course credits or participate by auditing. Some offer credit for independent travel to qualified applicants and a few even invite high school students to sign up.

Programs are listed by region — Africa, Asia-Pacific, Middle East, Europe, Latin America and North America. They are also classified by general subject areas — the arts, education, languages, literature, pure science, religion, social sciences and technology. Three hundred more specific subject areas, ranging from ancestor and atomic science to coral reefs and Kubbutz education, are referenced in the index. Cost, credit hours, dates and departure points are listed in each program description. Copies of "World Study and Travel for Teachers" are available by sending $2 to Travel Department, American Federation of Teachers, 11 Dupont Circle, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Can you survive?

(This is the fifth in a series of 12-articles, entitled Can You Survive, containing survival tips from the U.S. Air Force Survival School at Fairchild Air Force Base, Wash.)

You are planning a cross-country ski trip with a friend. The area to be covered is a remote mountainous region that has no passable roads. Your total distance for the trip is 50 miles. Weather forecasts give a 5-day outlook for fair skies and temperatures at or below zero. In preparation for this trip, WOULD YOU...

A. Confine your plans and preparations to yourself and your companion.

B. Seek out professional advice on preparation, but keep the essential details to yourself.

C. Prepare for the trip by seeking out known professionals for advice on clothing and equipment necessary to insure your safety and enjoyment, arrange a deadline for completion, and establish emergency action to be taken in the event of bad weather and/or injury that could cause unforeseen delays.

D. Take no action other than getting your skis and clothing together and starting out. The weather is fair, and the outlook is good. The trip can be made in a day.

TO SURVIVE...

(C) is the proper action to take. Any time you plan to take a trip of this type, always contact the people who are acknowledged professionals in the activity. They will be able to provide you with definitive guidance on what the necessary preparations are to insure a safe and enjoyable excursion.

(B) would be the same as (C) except the plans should be made known to someone close to you who will be aware of when to expect you home. Also, your plans, including the route of travel, should be made known to the local forestry or game management agency responsible for the area you intend to travel through.

(A) and (D) provide totally unacceptable alternatives in the preparation of your trip. (A service of your local Air Force recruiter.)

By ATT. GEN. FRANK KELLEY

Two boards in Michigan which license physicians are trying to zero in on a common form of drug abuse which is too frequently aided by careless or greedy doctors.

The focal point of the efforts is amphetamines — a class of drugs which have trade names like benzadrine or preludin, but are more commonly known by street names like speed, uppers or copilots.

For years, amphetamines have been legitimately used to treat some health problems such as hyperkinetic behavioral disorders in children.

But amphetamines have been more widely prescribed by physicians as an appetite suppressant to control weight or to combat obesity. They often are referred to as "diet pills."

More and more data, however, suggests that the risks associated with amphetamine as a diet aid far outweigh the benefits.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration has warned that amphetamines can be habit forming and dangerous and several states already have withdrawn amphetamines as a drug which can be prescribed by physicians.

The danger of amphetamines is their high potential for physical or psychological dependence. That generally means over a period of time the user will require greater and greater amounts of the drug to obtain the same effects.

Too frequently, use of amphetamines may cause a person to experience paranoia and/or hallucinations such as the feeling that bugs are crawling under the skin.

When a person tries to cut down on the drug after developing a dependency, there are feelings of extreme fatigue, hunger, disorientation and severe depression.

Despite widespread dissemination of this data, some physicians have continued to prescribe these dangerous drugs over long periods of time without regard to the overall welfare of the patients.

That's essentially why two regulatory boards in Michigan are addressing the problem and are trying to establish and promulgate rules to restrict the use of amphetamines and thus protect patients.

The Board of Medicine, which licenses physicians in Michigan, already has adopted a set of rules which must be followed by physicians who prescribe amphetamines.

And the Board of Osteopathic Medicine and Surgery, which licenses physicians to practice osteopathic medicine, is considering the same set of rules.

The rules require physicians to keep better records on patients including a complete medical history to determine any past dependency on drugs. Patients must be examined at each visit and limits are set on the frequency and dosage of amphetamine prescriptions.

Shower the bride

Springtime is near and it seems that at that more time than any other time of the year there are bridal showers. So if you're involved in one this year consider this Raspberry Sunshine Torte that's picture pretty and easy to prepare.

Coconut bar cookie crumbs layered with vanilla ice cream, raspberry preserves and lemon sherbet is what it takes to shower your guest and the bride-to-be with good tastes.

For your recipe file

Brides are treated to a shower of goodies at their bridal showers — good wishes, gifts and good food.

Although the occasion may be, and usually is, very simple, a dessert-and-cup-of-tea affair, the food should be picture-pretty. Raspberry Sunshine Torte is that, but it's decidedly easy to prepare with its crust of coconut bar cookie crumbs and melted butter. The layers of the torte are just as easily done with vanilla ice cream, lemon sherbet and raspberry preserves. Imaginative decor is provided by thin lemon wheels surrounding the torte and red raspberries with mint sprigs on top.

An alternative selection would be a Dessert Pizza, ideal for any crowd, but certain to please the younger generation. This has a thin buttery crust with a topping of pineapple and strawberries, coconut and pecans. It might also be made with peaches and pineapple and blueberries as a topper.

For preparation ease, make the Raspberry Sunshine Torte in advance and freeze. The crust for the Dessert Pizza may be baked in advance, then completed with whatever combination of fruits is desired.

RASPBERRY SUNSHINE TORTE

- 1 1/4 cups coconut bar cookie crumbs
- 1/4 cup butter, melted
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
- 1 can (8 1/4 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
- 1/2 cup raspberry preserves
- 2 pints lemon sherbet

Combine cookie crumbs and butter; press into bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 350 degrees, 10 minutes. Chill. If desired, press 12 thin lemon slices against sides of springform pan.

- 3/4 cup butter
- Two-thirds cup sugar
- 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 4 tbsp. cold milk
- 1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
- Two-thirds cup flaked coconut
- Two-thirds cup chopped pecans
- 1 1/2 cups strawberry slices
- 1 cup strawberry jelly, melted

Cream softened butter and sugar until light and fluffy; gradually add flour and salt. Add milk, 1 tablespoon at a time, mixing lightly with a fork until moistened. Pat dough into buttered 12-inch pizza pan. Bake at 400 degrees, 15 to 18 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool.

Spread pineapple over baked crust. Sprinkle with coconut and nuts. Arrange strawberries on top. Drizzle with jelly. Cut into wedges.

VARIATION: Spread combined 1 cup dairy sour cream and 2 tablespoons sugar over cooled crust. Top with 3/4 cup crushed pineapple, drained, 2 cups peach slices and 1 cup blueberries.

CASMIR MICHNIEWICZ

Party honors Michniewicz, 90

Friends, family and relatives recently gathered at the Allen Dee Residential Center in Wayne to help former Belleville area resident Casmir Michniewicz celebrate his 90th birthday.

Held Feb. 11, the party also included residents of the center. Michniewicz lived in the Belleville area for more than 60 years before relocating in Wayne.

At 90 he has a daughter, Mrs. Rose Duey of Allen Park, and two sons, Joe Michniewicz of Romulus and Casmir Michniewicz of Belleville. He also has 19 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren.

YWCA springs into action with warm-weather lineup

The YWCA of Western Wayne County will spring into action this spring with a variety of programs slated to begin later this month and in April.

The YWCA begins its spring swim class program March 31 and April 3. The 10-week sessions are scheduled for Taylor Center High School pool on Wick Road a half mile west of Telegraph Road.

Saturday classes begin at 1 p.m. with Parent-Tot swim and progress through the Red Cross plan from beginner through senior life saving. Parent-Tot swim costs $12. Teen and adult swim sessions are held Tuesday evening, both instructional and exercise for the experienced swimmer.

The Y is offering racquetball lessons in cooperation with the Supreme Racquetball Club on Brandt off of Ecorse Road between Middlebelt and Merriman starting March 29 at 6 p.m. Four lessons at $35 includes instruction, equipment and all club facilities.

A variety of other spring activities are scheduled to be held at the Western Wayne County YWCA, 26279 Michigan Avenue between Beech Daly and John Daly. Slim Trim, six sessions for $14, begins March 27 and May 8 at 7:30 p.m., Yoga, 10 sessions for $16 begins April 4 at 7 p.m.; and indoor gold, five sessions for $16, begins March 27 at 1 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Other indoor golf sessions will be scheduled for the afternoon and evening by request.

Macrame will be taught by YWCA board member Paula Boase on Tuesdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. for three sessions at $12, plus materials, beginning April 24. Experienced or inexperienced knot tiers will come away with a completed wall hanging or elegant evening purse.

Valerie Mayer-Simmons begins an Effective Assertiveness series for four weeks at $20, beginning May 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. The course will include discrimination training in identifying assertive, non-assertive and aggressive behavior, identification of irrational belief systems, personal rights, carrying a conversation, handling compliments, making positive self-statements, making and refusing requests, seeking specific information, saying no and rehearsal of specific behaviors.

Karen Nigolian, Co-owner of Nigolian Carpet Co., Dearborn, has planned a special treat for YWCA members on May 9. Karen has extended an invitation for coffee at her Michigan Avenue show room and entry into the magic world of hand made orientals. The guest list is limited to 20 so advance reservations with the Y are necessary.

To register for any activity listed call the YWCA at 561-4110. Basic membership for one year in the YWCA of Western Wayne County is $6 for adults and $3 for youth.

The YWCA of Western Wayne County provides decentralized services for children, teens and women, in addition to those areas mentioned, in Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Inkster, Taylor, Romulus, Canton, Westland, Wayne, Garden City and Livonia.

Suggestions for additional services are welcomed and should be directed to a program director by calling 561-4110.

Just in Passing

Spring is at hand!

By KAY DeBord

Spring is at hand!

And what does it mean to you besides the end of wearing heavy boots, shoveling snow, bundling kids into snowsuits, and praying that the car will start on a cold day?

To me, it means I can listen to the cardinals carrying out lengthy conversations in the treetops and watching a robin strut across the yard with supreme self-assurance.

It means seeing little girls in dresses (sometimes!) and boys carrying baseball bats and people washing cars in driveways.

Spring also is cleaning out the debris of winter from flower beds, seeing that the tulips that were interred last fall are really coming up (whether they will bloom for me is another matter!) and seeing the man of the house hopefully putting away the snowblower and getting out the bag of fertilizer for the lawn. (The start of an endless pursuit for green stuff that is fruitless — because it is at its greenest just in time for the first frost of fall.)

The melting of the snow also makes visible the visits of numerous canines of the neighborhood and one leaves the sidewalk at a risk of soiled shoes — and the man of the house sends up dire cruises to the owners of the straying pooches that, if granted, won't contribute to their well-being in the Hereafter.

Spring is finding that last year's warmer weather wardrobe has taken on the aspects of a straitjacket combined with steel bands — indicating that the feasting of winter and the holiday season indulgences has taken its toll.

And dieting won't be all that easy with the current price of salad fixings at the supermarket and the price of steak going up!

Spring also is seeing the neighbors walking by and giving a greeting in passing — or even pausing to update one on all that has happened during the cold of winter.

Warmer weather also means feeling guilty about reading or watching television when the work outdoors is calling — or you know there is painting or closet cleaning to be done.

Another nice thing about spring is knowing that there are hoards of people who are feeling the same way about it — and evening pitying those who live in warm climates who won't know the thrill of seeing the first green mist of leaves on the trees or enjoying standing out in spring twilight and hearing the carillon of a nearby church competing with the twittering of birds readying for the night — and knowing that even better is to come!

Of clothing youngsters

Sewing your own can ease cost crunch

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

Inflation has become a household word in the past few years. It's similar to an infection. It bothers us all at one time or another, and like cancer, the cure is hidden in the future.

Coping with inflation can give you headaches. You can take from one source to shore up another, only to find the latter has sprung a leak.

There are all sorts of ways to hold the line on spending, but these days, one area that most money sometimes seems impossible to defeat. That's children's clothing.

Youngsters are little people and logically should be dressed like their adult counterparts. But when you're on a limited budget, investing in a 3-piece suit for a 5-year-old who'll most likely sprout 3 inches over the coming year is all but out of the question.

One way around that cost crunch, is shopping sales. You can pick up some great bargains, but sometimes the cash isn't available when the sales take place. And charging it tends to defeat the purpose of shopping sales, when you have to pay interest charges.

If you have a sewing machine, then you have — to borrow a CB term — a handle on the problem of clothing children. Making their clothing may take a bit of your time, but the savings overall is surprising.

It takes more than "a little bit of luck," but you can't beat a bottom line cost for a boy's shirt of $1.25. And in some cases that homemade shirt will be better made and more durable than the $8 version in the department store.

It takes planning to come out way ahead in the make your own clothes department. In my several years of fabric shopping, here's some little tricks I've discovered.

—When you buy a pattern consider if you can use it more than once. In children's patterns, you can come up with a well-rounded wardrobe with four or five patterns — shirts, slacks, jumpers, blouses and pants.

Most patterns include several styles, doubling or even tripling their uses, and for an outlay of about $1.25 each, your investment is only as much as a pair of store-boughten pants.

If you buy a long-sleeved shirt pattern for a boy, remember that the sleeves can be cut off for short-sleeved, summer fashions. And with athletic shorts the craze, one pattern and a raid on the sales counter, can keep your youngster "in" all summer long.

Little girl's pants can be sewn in about an hour, if you opt for elasticized waistbands, and generally, only need a half yard of material. And if you pick up on a good buy at a yard, you can get two pairs for the price of one.

—Be cautious in selecting your material. I've picked up a few lemons that at the time seemed like good buys. Check the entire piece of fabric for flaws, stains and whatnot. Spots here and there may be worked around, so consider where they are on the material.

Also consider the types of fabrics. If you're an inexperienced seamstress or tailor, it's smart to start with solid colors and prints that don't need to be matched. Plaids, stripes and checks are for later, and velvets are for the very experienced.

When selecting your material, think of how the fabric is going to be used. Gauze is fashionable, but tricky to work with. Knits are nice, but some require a special needle and sometimes a different presser foot on your machine.

—Read your patterns carefully. An aunt of mine, who sews on an early model Singer sewing machine without all the fancy stitches, gave me a good piece of advice once. Take your time. So very true. Rushing to complete something is all but a death toll for whatever you're making.

Follow the pattern directions step by step. You may think you know what you're supposed to do, but the pattern may say differently.

If you make a mistake, don't leave it in, or "work around it". That's another way of guaranteeing failure. Sit down and correct the error, even if it means ripping out the entire seam.

Other tips for the money-saving seamstress is buy your thread on sale. Quick buys at 5 spools for a $1 — sometimes 10, if you're lucky — can give you a wide variety to choose from, when it's time to sew. Buttons and snaps are two items that are somewhat costly for home sewing. Fancy buttons can cost as much as 90 cents for a set of two, and if you're making a shirt that requires nine buttons, there goes some of the savings factor.

I suggest you snip buttons from old shirts, jackets and pants that are headed for the rag box. Some men's shirts can have as many as 13 buttons on them, a bonanza for any button box.

And lastly, home sewing, with the idea to keep your youngsters in clothes, takes time. Why not set aside an hour or so an evening when it's just you and your sewing machine, material and patterns. You'd be surprised how relaxing it can be, and you'll find your family will really appreciate something you made yourself for them.

Arts Club surveys Stretch-Sew method

Muriel Wolfe opened the March meeting of the Home Arts Club by introducing Sue Schwartzberger and Diane Ozanich from the Stretch and Sew fabric center in Ann Arbor.

Ms. Ozanich explained that Ann Person invented the Stretch and Sew method of sewing 12 years ago. She also stated that all Stretch and Sew instructors are trained in Oregon and Cincinnati during a week-long instructional program.

The Stretch and Sew method classes are taught only by certified instructors at Stretch and Sew fabric centers. The 8-class sessions were explained and the clothes the students are to make during the lessons were shown and modeled for the group.

The eight classes are available in Ann Arbor and Livonia and cost $25.

Sue Schwartzberger demonstrated the last class lesson which is how to fit and make a swimsuit. She actually made a suit for her daughter while the group watched, listened and saw the other styles modeled.

Immediately following the program, the business meeting was called to order by president Betty Gott. The roll was answered by 19 members and 15 guests including Jill Gerth, Elinor Kenyon, Dorothy Curtis, Loretta Long, Kim Smither, Myrtie Young, Emma Stevens, Suzanne Stevens, Debbie Eichold, Ruth Duda, Sally Jones, Marilyn Oates, Helen Jankowski, Karma Chapo, and Bernice Raymond.

Mary Kosin announced that the next meeting will held on April 9 at 7:30 p.m. at North Junior High School. Election of officers is on the agenda for the evening. Betty Gott will be forming the nominating committee this month. The program will feature Tom Kelly demonstrating disco dancing and a group lesson also will be given.

The hostesses for the evening, Lucille Bravato and Beverly Eichold, chose a St. Patrick's Day theme for their table setting and provided a variety of cookies for the group to enjoy.

MUSICAL NOTES
by Doug Brown

Many of the world's greatest music masters showed their natural talent at very young ages. Franz Haydn was no exception. At the age of 5, young Franz Joseph Haydn composed his first piece. He became famous as a composer of light opera. In fact, the Prince of Esterhazy engaged him to provide two weekly operatic performances when he was 32. Years of hard work brought Haydn an invitation to visit England, where he was feted and honored by nobility. His best known work "The Creation" was performed by the Vienna Symphony Orchestra in 1808 to honor his 76th birthday. He died the following year, 1809.

Whatever you are looking for in a piano or organ we invite you to come to DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, 942-8484. We know you'll find just what you want at a price you can afford. We'll be happy to answer any questions you have while you feel free to browse around our store. Inquire about our rental-purchase plan, Master Charge and Visa honored as well as local bank financing available.

MUSIC TIP:
A fine example of Haydn's work is the "Surprise Symphony", which features crashing chords to wake any listeners who may be sleeping.

BARTELL CHIROPRACTIC LIFE CENTER

PRENATAL CARE & CHIROPRACTIC

PRENATAL CHANGES

A woman adapts greatly during the prenatal period; the new mother-to-be faces profound changes during these approximately 270 days. Physically and emotionally, she must prepare for the responsibility of sustaining, nurturing and delivering a new life. Every aspect of her life is changing; nearly every function of her body, even the structure of it will alter to accommodate the growing embryo.

NATURE AND THE PRENATAL PERIOD

The body of the healthy mother-to-be accommodates the growing infant naturally. Her body processes increase, decrease or stop automatically as required until her baby is born.

For example, her appetite increases to supply proper nutrition to both mother and child; the demands of pregnancy on her kidneys are met by a built-in reserve; her pelvis stretches to allow greater capacity; her lower back muscles and ligaments adapt to the strain caused by her additional body weight.

WHEN NATURE NEEDS HELP

The nervous system is the key to good health. Vital energy is transmitted by a network of nerves from the brain, through the spinal column, to all parts of the body. This energy must flow freely.

Restriction of this flow allows nerve pressure to build. Such interference might cause the expectant mother to lose her appetite, experience kidney difficulties, severe lower back pain, pain in her hips and legs or pelvic discomfort.

INCLUDE CHIROPRACTIC IN PRENATAL HEALTH PROGRAM

Consult your chiropractor early; it is a good idea to see him when pregnancy is indicated. Spinal adjustments help the body adapt to these increasing demands. Your chiropractor's advice and attention will help make this phase of your life as healthy and fulfilling as nature intended.

CHIROPRACTIC AND PRENATAL CARE

The chiropractor is a specialist, trained to detect interference of nerve impulse transmission. He corrects such interference with spinal adjustments which restore good health.

Chiropractic can solve many prenatal health problems. Loss of appetite, lower back pain (often complicated by hip and leg pain), anxiety — even morning sickness is often avoided by regular prenatal chiropractic care.

Best of all, regular chiropractic care may reduce the severity of labor pains, increase the possibility of an uncomplicated delivery and ensure faster postnatal recovery.

Soft look

"Retro Hair," soft, feminine and reminiscent of the '40s glamor look, is the choice of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologist Association, introduced recently in Las Vegas, Nev. Adaptable for any length hair, the styles are most effective with shorter hair, according to styling experts.

Retro hair brings back glamour era

Women who will admit they remember the hairstyles worn by such actresses as Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Crawford, Roselind Russell and others of the glamorous '40s era — or who have been viewers of the late, late shows, will recognize what's coming in the spring in hairstyling salons.

Retro Hair, the spring and summer hair creations of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, brings soft femininity and a touch of glamor back to hair design for 1979.

Thomas H. Read, educational director of the Virginia Farrell Beauty Schools, on return from Las Vegas, Nev., said that Retro Hair is characterized by precision styling, asymmetrical bangs and beautiful, naturally healthy hair.

The styling can be adapted to practically any hair length and is expected to appeal to the woman who is sure of who she is and how she wants to be seen by others, according to the stylists.

However, it is pointed out, to be most effective, Retro Hair is most effective with the shorter hairstyles that have become more and more popular with the "with-it" woman of today.

Kiss your baby

"A kiss is a gift of love. To your child," says Dr. Robert Gregg, president of Children's Hospital of Michigan, "a kiss is the ultimate sign that his world is secure and you are there to care for him."

Dr. Gregg asks you to kiss your baby with more than love. Do it with very special attention.

One of the signs of cystic fibrosis, an inherited and very serious lung-damaging disease, is a salty taste to the skin. If you taste salt on your baby, see your doctor. Make sure your baby has a test for CF. Chances are, your child does not have CF, but if he does, early diagnosis and prompt treatment are essential to his well-being.

Additional signs of CF, or other lung-damaging diseases include recurrent wheezing, persistent coughing with excessive mucus, pneumonia more than once, excessive appetite but poor weight gain and clubbing (enlargement of fingertips). Other signs of CF include persistent, bulky diarrhea and nasal polyps.

For more information, contact the Metropolitan Detroit Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation (965-1721). And spread the word — Babies are born to be kissed.

She maintains tradition of her homeland

By KAY DeBORD

When Suzuko (Suzy) Yokom came to Wayne from Japan eight months ago, she brought with her a number of the traditions of her homeland — among them the art form of paper-folding known as origami.

While she makes little of her ability to concoct dainty and colorful items from the traditional rice paper imported from Japan, it takes a certain deftness to be truly creative.

According to Mrs. Yokom, origami is an art form handed down in the family in her native land. Mothers entertain their children by creating the paper-fold objects and teach them to be creative to entertain themselves.

Transplanted to the Wayne area from Tokyo, Mrs. Yokom, a petite, dainty woman, came to Michigan with Richard her husband of 23 years when he was transferred to the United States by his firm. In addition to parting from the familiar, the Yokoms also had to leave behind their daughters, Cora, a professional model, and Judy, also a model who recently married.

"We have large phone bills," laughed Mrs. Yokom, who knows how important family ties can be. Mrs. Yokom, who likes to "keep her fingers busy," has made a variety of dainty origami articles ranging from Samurai warriors to nut cups for parties.

"You can make little drinking cups from the paper by folding it the right way," Mrs. Yokom said, demonstrating as she spoke, "or even coin purses and doll furniture."

Her deft fingers are responsible for a number of colorful paper creations — small birds, flowers, boats, a minute desk and chair, an organ and various ornaments.

"During wartime," she added, "the Japanese children used origami to make toys."

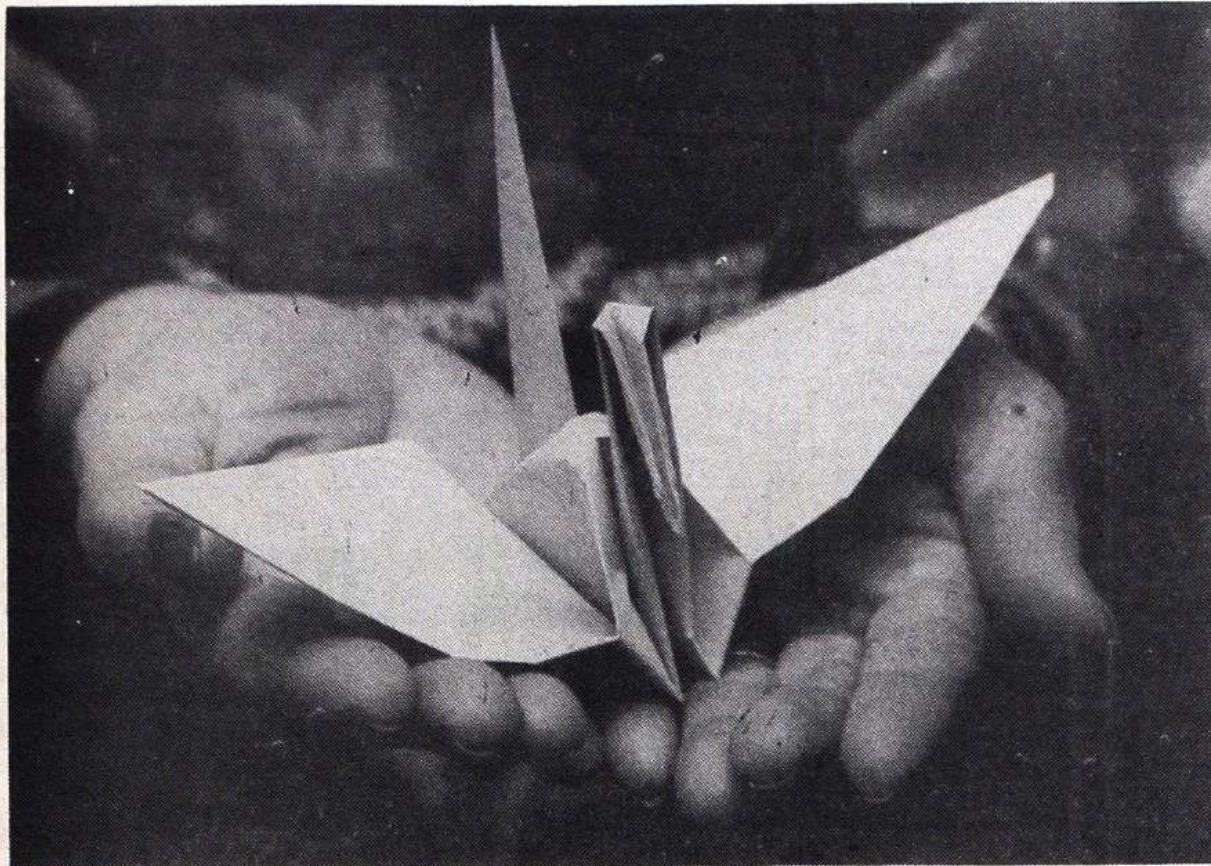

She went on to explain that it isn't necessary to use the imported rice paper to work with — "gift wrapping, paper wrappings and bags can be used," she said.

Mrs. Yokom's paper-fold creations have been popular at the school attended by a niece, where she has visited to demonstrate the art.

"I like to work with younger children, they follow what you teach step-by-step," Mrs. Yokom said. But it's a craft that is easy to forget if you don't keep at it, so she refreshes her art so it stays with her.

"I would like to learn to do patchwork," Mrs. Yokom said, and she is saving heavy linen-like rice bags to make a unique bedspread. She also does macrame and sews her own clothes and formerly made those of her daughters. In addition, she also works at a Japanese-Chinese restaurant in Livonia.

There are no idle moments for Suzy Yokom, but if there were — she would find something creative to fill the gap.

EMU Players stage 'Abelara, Helouise'

Peter Abelard, a French poet, theologian and scholar, and Heloise, the woman of passion and intellect he loved so dearly, are together again after a lifetime of forced separation.

The two star-crossed lovers now rest in Pere Lachaise Cemetery in Paris, finally united in death after the French government exhumed their bodies in 1814 from different plots in the same cemetery and joined them in a common grave.

The poignant tale of their unfulfilled love and tragedy provides a real life backdrop for the upcoming Eastern Michigan University Players' production of Ronald Millar's "Abelard and Heloise," which will be performed through April 1 at 8 p.m. in Eastern's Quirk Auditorium.

Based on the couple's historic letters and Helen Waddell's "Peter Abelard," the play depicts the love affair of the two ecclesiastical giants and how it shook the foundations of the 12th century French church.

Play director Ken Stevens, who also directs the EMU theater management program, outlined the tragic love story.

"Peter Abelard was a church philosopher and an extremely popular teacher at Notre Dame in Paris. He was most interested in the logic of Aristotle and was a rebellious theologian. As a teacher, he was employed by a canon of the church to teach the canon's niece — Heloise," Stevens explained.

As the story goes, Abelard moved into the canon's house to begin the instruction and eventually fell in love with Heloise. The couple had a child and were subsequently married.

An ultra-conservative clergyman, the canon wielded great power in the church. He decided that the marriage was illicit and, using his political influence, had Abelard castrated. After the castration, Abelard no longer could be considered a married man according to church dogma. He became a monk; Heloise became a nun. The separation served as a catalyst for letter writing, historic testimony to a frustrated love.

"The church is the chief antagonist in the play. It was an oppressive force that controlled people's lives and individual freedom," Stevens said.

The play opened in London in 1968. "I wanted to do the play because it's a passionate love affair between two great intellects. It's an exciting romance and it makes you cry."

A love story

Laura Baler (right) and Cindy Meier walk through a dress rehearsal for their roles in the upcoming Eastern Michigan University Players' production of "Abelard and Heloise," which will be performed through April 1 at 8 p.m. in Eastern's Quirk Auditorium. Baler, an EMU junior from Ann Arbor, plays Heloise in the production. Meier, an EMU senior from Wayne, plays the Abbess of Argenteuil. The play is based on the historic love letters of Peter Abelard, a famous 12th century French church philosopher, and Heloise, the woman he loved.

Count Bassie, Sarah Vaughn team up in MH concert

A rare treat is in store when Sarah Vaughan and Count Basie appear together at Detroit's Music Center. These two modern music immortals open their week-long engagement on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m.

Affectionately known as "the Divine Sarah" or "Sassy," Sarah Vaughan is indeed a living legend of song.

The bewitching sounds of her velvety textured voice set her apart from all the other great scat singers. She comes to the Music Hall directly following three special appearances at Carnegie Hall.

With boundless energy, Count Basie swings into Detroit with his unparalleled big band sound. Unaffected by 40 years on the road, rock music, and electronic effects, The Count and his Orchestra continue to produce best-selling records and win the highest awards. Count Basie was elected 593 Grammy $25rds Hall of Fame just one month ago.

Concert dates for the Vaughan-Basie show through April 8.

Evening performances are at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, 7 and 10 p.m. on Friday, 8:30 p.m. Saturday and 6:30 p.m. on Sunday. There also is a 2 p.m. matinee on Saturday. Tickets are available at Music Hall box office, 350 Madison Avenue, or by calling 963-7680 between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

First time in U.S. in 10 years

DSO to perform 'Die Aegyptische Helena'

The first U.S. performance in more than a decade of the Richard Strauss operatic masterpiece "Die Aegyptische Helena", and its first ever American performance outside New York City, will take place at 7:30 p.m. April 25, when Antal Dorati lifts his baton to conduct the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Maestro Dorati, the orchestra and a stellar cast headed by Gwyneth Jones in the title role will repeat the work later that week at two prestigious concert houses — Carnegie Hall in New York and the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The cast for "Helena" is spectacular and includes as Helen, wife of Menelaus, the world-famous Welsh soprano Gwyneth Jones, who is renowned for her performances with the Metropolitan Opera and in other opera capitols throughout the world; tenor Matti Kastu (Menelaus), a native of Finland who has appeared with great success in opera productions both in Europe and the United States; soprano Barbara Hendricks (Aithra, a sorceress), and baritone Willard White (Altair, a Nomad chieftain), both highly-acclaimed young American artists.

Tenor Curtis Rayam, who will be remembered by Detroit audiences for his critically acclaimed role of Alfonso in the DSO's production of the Schubert opera "Alfonso and Estrella" during the Orchestra's "Schubert and Vienna" Festival last November will sing the role of Da-Ud, Altair's son.

Contralto Birgit Finnlake, a native of Sweden who is in constant demand throughout the world, will be the voice of the Omniscent Sea-Shell.

"Die Aegyptische Helena" (The Egyptian Helen), an opera in two acts by Strauss, was first performed in Dresden, Germany in 1928. The libretto is by Hugo von Hofmannsthal.

"Helen" takes place after the end of the Trojan War. The first act is set on the small island of the sorceress Aithra, off the coast of Egypt; the second, in a tent in a grove at the foot of the Atlas Mountains. The story of "Helena" is based on a variant of the Greek legend of Helen, the most beautiful woman in the world and a direct cause of the Trojan War. She was the wife of Menelaus, but in her husband's absence she eloped to Troy with Paris, son of the Trojan King. When Paris was slain, Menelaus and she were reconciled and returned to Sparta, where they lived happily together until their deaths.

The variant of this tale that the opera draws inspiration from says that Helen never went to Troy, that she and Paris were driven ashore on the coast of Egypt and that Helen was detained there. The Helen carried off to Troy was thus a phantom, and the real one was recovered by her husband from Egypt after the war. This second version of the story was made popular by the poet Stesichorus and by Euripides in his romantic play "Helen". It is an obvious recantation of the first version and is due, at least in part, to the influence of those who revered Helen as a goddess (she was daughter of Zeus by a mortal woman) and denied that she ever went to Troy.

The opera offers still a third version of the story of Helen. Menelaus is on his way back to Sparta after the fall of Troy. The newly recovered Helen is with him and he intends to kill her in punishment for fleeing with Paris. The Omniscent Sea-Shell tells the sorceress Aithra of this and the sorceress raises a storm which wrecks Menelaus's ship on the coast of her island, Menelaus carries Helen ashore and so comes to Aithra. Aithra gives Menelaus a magic potion which makes him believe that Helen spent the 10 years of the Trojan War in Egypt, longing for him, while the Helen stolen by Paris was a phantom. Menelaus and Helen are reunited in blissful realization of their love.

If the second act, at Helen's wish, Aithra has brought the lovers to the foot of the Atlas Mountains where no one knows anything about her. The nomad chieftain Altair approaches with his handsome son Da-ud at the head of a troop of riders. Menelaus, in a fit of blind jealousy, kills Da-ud. Helen does not want to live in a dream any longer and gives Menelaus a potion to restore his memory. His first impulse is to kill Helen, but Aithra arrives in time and also saves Menelaus from the fury of Altair. Reconciled, the couple return to Sparta.

The Detroit performances of "Die Aegyptische Helena" is a special benefit performance to support the Orchestra's Tickets are available at Ford Auditorium Box Office at $25, $17.50 and $12, with students $5. A portion of each "Helena" ticket is tax deductible and the proceeds benefit the DSO.

'Abelard'

"The play is written almost like a film script and is comprised of many episodes taken from their lives. Some of the scenes are not even in chronological order. We use a chorus in which all of the characters except Abelard and Heloise become members. Through movement and sound, we dissolve from one scene to another," Stevens said.

The production will feature original music composed by Richard Hill, a 1976 graduate of Eastern, currently working as an actor at the Court Theater in Chicago. Stevens said Hill's compositions, although contemporary, exude a medieval quality. Tom Simond, an EMU speech and drama major, will serve as music director for the show. His job was to rearrange medieval music to blend with the music that Hill composed.

The 17-member student cast will perform all of the musical arrangements accompanied by a piano and a recorder played by James Gousseff, professor of speech and dramatic arts and director of theater at Eastern.

Contemporary staging designed by George Bird, technical director of theater, helps add to the "lavish spectacle of Medieval Christianity."

"It's free form staging," Stevens explained. "The set is open and utilizes a great deal of levels and provides a contemporary feel. We will use set pieces that are medieval. George Bird has developed drops (backdrops) from material used to cover freshly graded highways. (It resembles loosely woven burlap.) Using that and cheese cloth we get some very interesting lighting effects."

The student cast for the production will feature Tim Monsion, an EMU senior from Bay City, as Abelard and Laura Baler, a junior from Ann Arbor, as Heloise. Other principal characters include Gilles, played by Todd Hissong of Westland; Fulbert, played by Jim Siterlet; Robert, played by Charles Burr; Godric, played by Paula Kline; the Abbess of Argenteuil, played by Cynthia Meier of Wayne; and Bernard, played by Alfred Mohrmann.

The remaining members of the cast are Susan Sheldner, Larry Koch, Robert Becker, Carl Johnson, Bobb James, Krista Waite, Jill Greene, Colleen O'Hara and Army Levy.

Tickets for performances are $3.50 for general admission and $2.25 for EMU students. For ticket information, call the EMU Box Office at 487-1221.

'Jack' has new twist

The Greenfield Village Players have added a certain magic of their own to their version of "Jack and the Beanstalk", which will be staged in the Henry Ford Museum April 7, 14, 16-21 and 28 and May 5 and 12.

Showtime for each performance is 2 p.m., and admission to the play, which will include mysterious stage effects and enchanting fairy tale characters, is $2 per person.

Tickets will be available at the theater box office an hour before the performance, or at the museum entrance between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. They also can be obtained by sending a check to Play Reservations, Travel and Convention Department, Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn 48121.

Written by Dr. Joseph French, manager of the theater arts department, the play includes newly-created characters and turns of plot, as well as old familiar elements — the magic beans, the huge stalk, the evil giant and the hen that lays golden eggs. Children can even meet Jack and the rest of the actors after each performance.

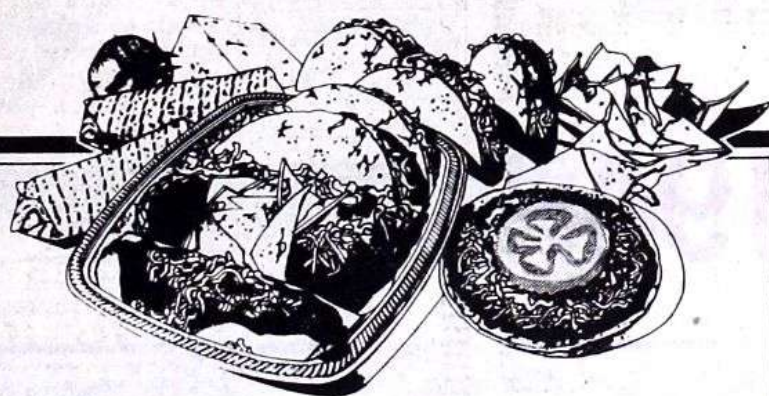

In this version, the giant captures Jack's father, a magician, and a harp with supernatural powers while Jack still is an infant. Years later, when the accidental planting of the magic beans produces a giant stalk, Jack decides to climb the stalk and rescue his father from a castle in the sky.

Special effects inspire young imaginations. The magic harp sings; a scroll disappears, and the giant beanstalk actually grows before the eyes of the audience.

The setting is the twilight world where figures of one fairy tale mingle with those from another. The heroine, for instance is Princess Petronilla, the daughter of Prince Charming and Cinderella, and Jack and his family are neighbors of the seven dwarfs.

ANP cagers want a shot at All-American giant, Ralph Sampson

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

So we don't have a Ralph Sampson, the overgrown 7-3½ prep cager from Harrisonburg, Va.

And maybe we lack the size of those All-Americans such as Sam Bowie, a 7-1 pivotman from Lebanon, Pa., Derrick Hord, a 6-7 Tennessee star.

But this area had its share of outstanding high school players who distinguished themselves during the recent campaign and who today are among the most sought after in the state.

Nineteen players - 12 from the Class A ranks: Daran Armstrong (Westland John Glenn), Rich Hewlett (Plymouth Salem), Chris Baker (Livonia Franklin), Herb Burrus (Belleville), Butch King (Plymouth Canton), Kyle Poteau (Wayne Memorial), Rusty Mandle (Plymouth Canton), Ralph McKenzie (Westland John Glenn), Darryl Lewis (Romulus), Ralph Jarnot (Livonia Churchill), Barry Owens (Plymouth Salem) and John Kersey (Romulus).

The dazzling Class B All-Area line-up includes: Floyd Simmons (Cherry Hill), Alvin Dukes (Inkster), Randy Pichan (New Boston Huron), Terry Ross (Dearborn Heights Robichaud), Pierre Hudson (Cherry Hill), Eric Crouch (Inkster) and George Johnson (Cherry Hill).

ARMSTRONG - With his superb speed and Larry Bird style passing, Daran Armstrong has led Coach Gordie Davis' Rockets to three consecutive Northwest Suburban Conference championship. Pre-season prognosticators gave the edge to North Farmington in winning the league title, but they apparently overlooked the role Armstrong plays as a floor general and a rallier to causes.

Daran holds Glenn's scoring record at 1106 and scored 442 of those this season in leading the Rockets to a 17-5 season. He had 210 career steals.

"Daran gave us a lot of confidence and is a very unselfish player," said Gordie Davis. "He is an outstanding college prospect because he can penetrate defenses so well and comes up with those key passes to the open man."

Not only is Armstrong a standout on the hardwood, but he is also an outstanding student, boasting a 3.8 scholastic average.

HEWLETT is one of the finest all-around athletes to graduate from a school that has produced many fine athletes. An all-stater in football who has been awarded a "full-ride scholarship" to the University of Michigan, Rich also quarterbacked Coach Fred Thomann's cagers to an unprecedented six consecutive Suburban 8 Conference cage titles.

Hewlett's clutch performances pulled many a close game out for Salem who went on to win the Class A district title.

BAKER has been the impetus of Franklin's success. A 6-4, 190 senior who transferred to the Livonia-based school in his junior year when Dearborn Heights Riverside failed to pass a millage, Chris has been the sparkplug of Coach Jim McIntyre's quintet. He scored 425 points this season, grabbed 345 rebounds and went on to earn all-conference recognition.

"He's a fine young man on and off the court," said Coach McIntyre. "He carries a 3.2 scholastic average and there are a lot of colleges who would like to have him in their lineup."

BURRUS carried most of the load for Belleville, a team that lost a couple of key players to injuries and transfers. Herb scored at a 22.2 pace this season and was deadly from the 20 to 25 foot range.

"Herb has extreme quickness and is an outstanding leaper," said Belleville Coach Tom Niemi. "He was a unanimous first team conference choice and we definitely centered our offensive strategy around his ability."

KING helped Plymouth Canton make history. A complete player who the Chiefs went to when they were in trouble, the 6-1 sharpshooter pumped in 20.1 per game in lifting Canton to an untarnished 10-0 Western Six Conference record, their first league title ever. He shot 49 percent from the floor and hit on 75 percent of his shots from the free throw line.

A first string all-conference choice and a all-Metro West selection, King says Coach Craig Bell, "is the purest high school shooter I have seen in a long time. He received the most votes of any player in the conference and was our MVP."

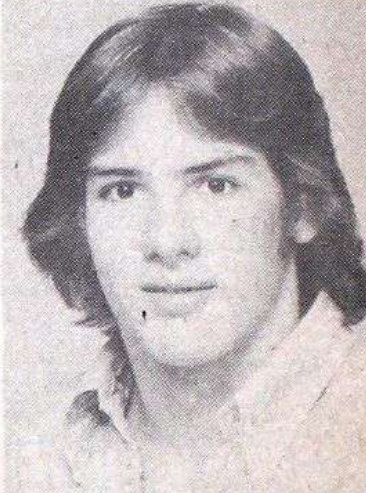

POTEAU was the most consistent player for Wayne Memorial and led the team in assists and scoring (11.1 points per game), and 4.1 assists. He made 41 percent of his shots from the field and 88 at the foul line.

The team's co-captain, Poteau was the Zebras' floor leader, and through his sheer determination made Wayne a respected rival throughout the season.

MCKENZIE, a 6-1 senior, slew the giants in the war to control the boards. Despite his size, McKenzie managed to grab his share of rebounds, collecting 10.5 per game, a determining factor in the Rockets' (Continued on 2nd Sports)

About Pele, Blonds and booster clubs

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Barb Czajkowski is attractive, aggressive, a housewife with three young children and should have more things on her mind than soccer.

But that's the sport she's pushing these days and for a couple of good reasons: First, she - now get this - coaches the sport, and, secondly, she's a Pele fan.

And if you don't know who Pele is then you don't watch TV very much. He's the guy who American Express Credit Cards has bouncing a soccer ball off his knee while he's speaking some strange language.

"I think soccer will replace a lot of traditional sports in the future because it's very cheap to outfit a team," said the blue-eyed, blond ex-St. Mary's of Wayne cheerleader. "But we need some community support to get this thing going in our city."

Mrs. Czajkowski's mission impossible is to secure enough financial backing from sponsors to field a host of soccer players.

"And we also need a soccer field," Mrs. Czajkowski continued. "You'll find so many baseball diamonds in the city of Wayne, but can you single out one spot that is for soccer?"

Mrs. Czajkowski isn't on a Don Quixote binge. She knows those windmills will always pose problems for the crusaders, but her cause is a good one - to give boys and girls an opportunity to play a sport that really isn't too difficult to learn.

She also has the services of coaches Dave Sage and Michael Rowland, who will be on hand April 9 at Monroe School (Chamberlain Park), 5021 Biddle to begin tryouts for the spring season. Tryouts are set for 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The "Youth Soccer Program" as it is being called will attempt to get pre-schoolers through eighth graders involved in the sport.

"We're not affiliated with a league or anything as of now," said the energetic mother of three (you got to have energy to handle three small kids - Kenny 8, Jonathon 6, and Greg 3½).

But one has to admire the way the soccer fanatics are invading the sports scene - they know how to hit - using beauty to overcome the beast in order to find their way on these pages.

If you want further information about the Wayne Youth Soccer program you'll have to show up at Monroe School on April 9. Mrs. Czajkowski forgot to leave her telephone number.

Belleville seeks athletic boosters

How important is community support for the success of a program? Infinite probably is the best word to describe it.

Without community support millages go down the drain, politicians fall and heads tumble.

And how many times has an excellent athletic team faltered when it runs up against a mediocre team that has the backing of its community.

And I often wonder if Cherry Hill had filled its side of the stands as did Clawson during the recently played Class B regional basketball finals at Oakland University, would the outcome of that crucial game been different?

We can go on and on and relate events that may have been different in the past if the community would have combined their efforts instead of pulling in separate directions.

But that's in the past.

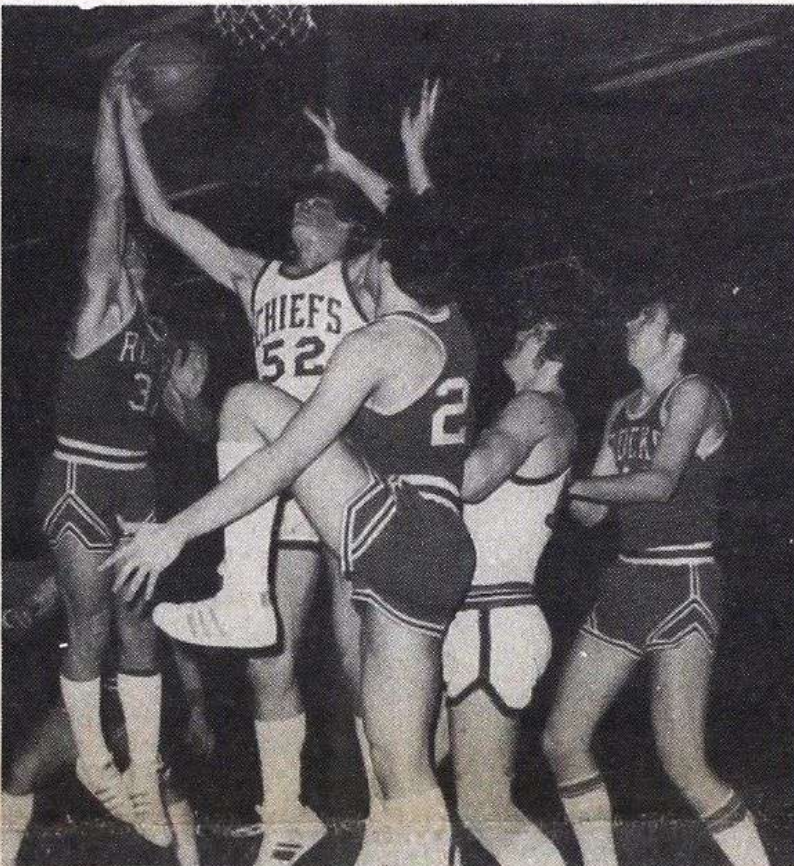

The future, at least, appears bright at Belleville where they are doing something to get the community behind its athletes.

"We're going to organize an all-sports booster club at Belleville," said Ron Hellier, the school's athletic director. "In the past we have had individual booster clubs, but not one general club to back our programs."

"And I think if we get more people behind our athletic programs we will eventually develop a winning atmosphere around here."

Belleville athletic boosters are urged to attend a meeting on the subject at 7 p.m., April 4 in the school's cafeteria.

And, after following Belleville's athletic destiny for more than a decade and a half, it is time for the people to give more than lip service to its young athletes who, in this columnist's humble opinion, are second to none in the state.

It's history now

Babe Ruth tryouts scheduled

If the weatherman would only cooperate the Van Buren Babe Ruth tryouts would get underway.

Officials for the league last week said they will hold baseball tryouts on Wednesday, March 28, beginning at 6 p.m.

Tryouts are also slated for 10 a.m., Saturday, March 31.

Potential players should report to North Junior High Field at the designated times. Players must be between the ages of 13 to 15 to be eligible to play in the league.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning league secretary Lee Walls at 697-0556.

Gordie Davis is ANP's Coach of the Year

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

GORDIE DAVIS

Here's one "nice guy" who finished first.

Through some mistake, Leo Durocher's quote of many years ago was changed to read "Nice guys finish last." What he actually said, we are told, was in reference to another team and he said, "They're nice guys but they are going to finish last."

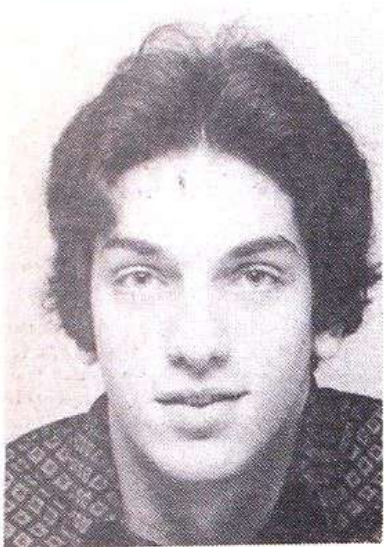

His quote became garbled through translation and will live in history as "Nice guys finish last."

However, Gordie Davis, named this week as Associated Newspapers' "Coach of the Year", is irrefutable proof of the fallacy of Durocher's misquoted quote.

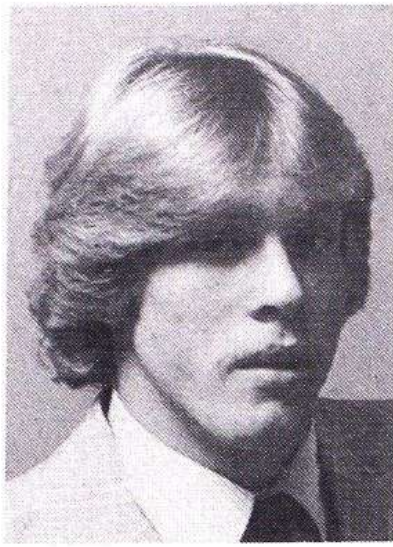

The soft-spoken Davis turned the basketball fortunes of Westland John Glenn from pitiful to prosperous in his 11 years at the helm.

He started at the JV level and then moved up to the varsity, where he developed the Rockets into a cage power. But he didn't do it alone. He had a lot of help from assistants and quest for the conference championship. He also tossed in 13 ppg. and became known as "Mr. Inside" on Coach Gordie Davis' quintet.

"Despite his size, Ralph held his own against the taller and more physical players," Davis said, "and, I know the season wouldn't have been what it was if it wasn't for him."

MANDLE made Canton's offense click. He is a small Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who would rather pass off to the free man instead of taking a questionable shot. With 188 assists, Rusty is the all-time assist king at the school and also the all-time rebounder.

The 6-2, 190-pound senior managed to get his share of baskets, scoring 10.2 per game.

"Rusty has great court vision," pointed out Coach Bell, "and delivers the ball to the open man which forced the opposition to be doubly wary of him when he has the ball."

LEWIS is the lone junior on the senior-dominated Class A team. He broke into the elite club by leading Romulus' Eagles to an enviable 16-6 record.

Scoring on an average of 15 points per game and leading the team in assists with 5.8 per, Darryl is a natural shooter and an intelligent cager.

"If there are any weaknesses," says Coach Rod Hanna, "it's that he wants to pass off too much."

KERSEY, at 6-1, was given the responsibility of playing center for the Eagles who worked their way into the Class A state rankings thanks to victories over such powerhouses as Ann Arbor Pioneer and Willow Run. With a 13 point average and nine rebounds, Kersey provided the young Eagles with the necessary leadership they needed to face a strong schedule.

About that schedule Coach Hanna remarked, "It was one of the toughest in recent years. In fact, our record against these opponents is the best since the days of Johnny Long." (Long is presently with the Detroit Pistons.)

OWENS, at 6'2½ and 187 pounds, was another one of Coach Fred Thomann's superb athletes who refused to buckle under pressure. An expert in analyzing plays on both ends of the court, Owens became one of the unsung heroes of the Salem campaign that included 11 consecutive victories before losing their first to Allen Park.

"These kids were under pressure all year long," Thomann pointed out, "and they could have buckled at any time. It's a credit to them that they kept their poise."

JARNOT rounds out the Class A cagers who are being honored today. At 6-4, he's one of the tallest members of the squad and Churchill's offense was built around him.

Ralph scored 244 points and grabbed 217 rebounds this season to become the Chargers leading scorer as well as rebounder.

"He was a player we relied on heavily," said Coach Fred Price, "and this is the first year he went through the season without illness and injury."

"Most teams were forced to double-team him. In the light of that, Ralph's importance to our team was immeasurable," Price added.

Heading the Class B selections are three Cherry Hill players who helped take Coach Dick McNally's Spartans to the regional finals at Oakland U. — Floyd Simmons, Pierre Hudson and George Johnson.

Simmons, a lithe 6-1 leaper who plays four inches taller than his height, was a three-year starter for Cherry Hill. So influential was the fluid floater with the deadly shooting eye that he led the Spartans to a better record during his tenure than the legendary Bob Fowler did in his final three years in earning All-State honors.

Simmons helped lead Cherry Hill to successive records of 15-5, 20-4 and 20-5 for a total of 55-14, while Fowler's three-year totals were 8-6, 17-3 and 17-4 for a career mark of 42-13.

"He's one of the top five Class B high school players in the state," Coach McNally said earlier this year after Simmons led the Spartans to their third consecutive Tri-River League basketball championship.

The Detroit Free Press and Detroit News corroborated that fact last week when both metropolitan newspapers named Simmons to their Class B All-State teams.

"He's also one of the finest defensive players I've ever coached," McNally said of the deadly-shooting offensive star who netted 1311 career points, including 535 this season for a 21 point average.

Simmons also hauled down an average of nine rebounds a game.

No player in this area had the explosive burst down the baseline to the basket that Hudson had. The 5-11 senior guard left defensive players grasping for air as his zephyr-like drives accounted for 350 points this season.

A track star, the elusive Hudson was extremely quick and was more valuable to the Spartans than many people realized.

"Pierre is a good positive influence on the other players and one of our tri-captains," McNally said.

Leading Cherry Hill in rebounding was George Johnson, who played up around the rim many times although he stands only 6-foot-2.

Besides snaring 13 caroms a game, the easy-smiling senior averaged 10 points each contest. "George is an outstanding leader," McNally pointed out, "and a very good student. His all-around play and rebounding ability took us a long way."

Cherry Hill's season record ended at 20-5 with the 61-59 regional final loss to Clawson at Oakland U.

Joining them are two outstanding cagers from nearby Inkster High School, Alvin "Bo" Dukes and Eric Crouch.

Inkster Coach George Thompson Jr. waxes eloquent when describing the play of Dukes, the 5-8, 135 pound wizard. "He's a fantastic player — one of the five best players I've coached in my 15 seasons, and that's saying a lot," Thompson said.

Dukes, a unanimous selection to the Suburban Athletic Conference first-team, averaged 21 points a game, 13 assists and five steals.

"He was so effective in moving the ball, he made things happen and opened up the floor for our other players to be effective," Thompson.

Dukes was named second team All-Metro and third team All-State last week.

Crouch, a 6-1, 160-pound junior is one of the finest leapers in the area. In addition to netting 14 points each game, he grabbed 10 rebounds a contest and out-leaped many players much taller than he.

"Eric has real determination and is a natural leader. He's our team captain for next year and gives 150 percent every day, even in practice," Thompson said.

Randy Pichan added to his All-Area football honors by being named to the elite basketball dream team. The 6-5, 190-pound quarterback was outstanding on the boards with a 17-point scoring average while hauling down 15 rebounds each tilt.

"Most of the teams we played double-teamed Randy but he still managed to have an outstanding season," said his coach Gene Smith.

Rounding out the team is another in a long list of outstanding players from Robichaud, Terry Ross, who averaged more than 20 points a game.

Effective all season, but especially in the last few games, the 6-3, 170-pound senior was named to the first team in the rugged Suburban Athletic Conference.

A good rebounder and all-around player, Ross had the knack of putting the ball in the basket even though Coach Francis MacCauley's Bulldogs lacked a strong supporting cast.

Ross was especially effective in the last few games of the season and against Inkster when the Bulldogs ousted the Vikings from the state playoffs in the Robichaud Districts.

Exemplifying the excellent high school players produced in the area is Wayne Memorial's Andy Daily(41) who is shown here maneuvering via dribbling past Belleville's Scott Straight during the Christmas Holidays. The two will be back next year, but most of this year's All-Area picks won't - the bulk of the coveted team is made up of seniors.

Tri-City Class A champs

4-Seasons wins cage title

Scoring 35 points in the last period, Four Seasons humbled Westgate Auto 100-79 to win the "rubber match" and the Tri-City Class A men's basketball championship.

The showdown was set up earlier in the week when Westgate upset Four Seasons 76-74 after Four Seasons won the opener 104-89.

Four Season's scoring trio - Allen Taylor, Popo Rojas, and Jerry Jarrilla - was too much for Westgate which remained in the game until that final period.

Four Seasons worked its way to a slim 20-18 lead, then widened that margin by outscoring their arch-rivals 29-17 in the second frame to take a 49-35 advantage into the locker room. Westgate then out-scored the champs 20-16, but Four Seasons roared to a 35-24 finale, sweeping the title with them.

Taylor finished the evening with 27 points and was perfect at the foul line, hitting on all five of his chances. Rojas chipped in with 26 while Jarrilla added 22.

But the individual scoring honors went to Clint Barnett, Westgate's sharpshooter who pumped in 20 field goals and made three of six at the foul line for a hefty game high 43 points. Also in double figures was former Livonia Franklin pitcher, Tony Kaseta, who added 14.

Barnett hit a 10-foot jumper with a mere six seconds left to break a 74-74 deadlock and give Westgate the second game, 76-74, to force the issue into a third game.

He finished the night with 31, the game high and got ample support from Kaseta who had 19.

Taylor sank 25, Jarrilla had 14 and Paul McGlenahan picked up 11 for the losers who hit a cold streak in the first period and trailed by as much as 16 points (31-16) before they recovered.

Four Seasons won the scoring war the next three periods, 16-11, 17-14, and 26-20.

In the playoff opener, Four Seasons jumped out in from 26-17 and never trailed in the 104-89 victory.

This time it was McGlenahan who paced the winners, scoring 13 from the field and two of two at the line for a team high 28, one shy of tying highman, Lonnie Parker who wound up with 29. Barnett chalked up 24 points and Kaseta accounted for 12 for the losers.

Taylor again hit in double figures, getting 26, and Rojas added 18.

Belleville Tiger Swim Club is doormat of Super 6 League

Despite some outstanding performances from its relay teams, the Belleville Tiger Swim Club finished last in a field of six teams at their annual Super Six League championships staged last week.

Milan, with a total of 1586½ points, won the team title, followed by Chelsea (1566), Ypsilanti(1256), Plymouth(1022), Willow Run(834½), and Belleville(597).

Belleville's 8-and-under 100-yard medley relay team was the best in the meet as Martin Duda, Ricky Schurr, Eric Snider and Dan Fancher turned in the winning time of 1:25.8.

The Tigers also had the top entry in the 9-10 year-old group for the medley relay. The foursome of Tony Atwell, Harpo Dubisky, Greg Lynch and Matt Stoelton finished the race with an impressive 1:11.1.

In the 100-yard freestyle relay, Martin Duda, Ricky Schurr, Eric Snider and Bill Atwell won with a time of 1:13.6.

In the 9-10 year old age group, the Tigers had winners in Tony Atwell, Dubisky, Lynch and Adam Theeke who were clocked in 1:01.0 for the freestyle relay.

Belleville came away with six individual awards.

Jr. Olympics boxing dates set

The Junior Boxing Olympics will come to the area next month as the Ann Arbor Boxing Club has been designated to host the prestigious tournament.

Dates for the Olympics are May 19 and May 20 beginning at 6 p.m. Some of the top amateur boxers across the state will be in the ring, battling for state and national recognition.

"We are very proud to host the Olympics," said Roosevelt "Stacy" McKinley, head coach and program director. "This is the first state-wide encounter of its kind and we expect it to be one of the finest."

Pistons to honor Johnny Long

When Hawks come to town on April 6

—He was the neighborhood kid that they said couldn't make it.

—And, at each level of his athletic career, Johnny Long made believers out of the skeptics.

First it was at Romulus High where the lanky Long played a forward for former cage coach Dave Court. During his three year stint with the Eagles, Long made Romulus a state powerhouse.

For his dazzling performances which captivated prep fans across the state, Long earned a full-ride scholarship to the University of Detroit. Skeptics said he couldn't make it on the college level and that if he could he probably would succumb to poor grades.

But Long continued to mature and excel on the hardwood, while remaining academically eligible. At U of D, Long teamed with Terry (Thunder) Tyler and became known as the "Thunder and Lightning" combination for Dick Vitale's cagers.

When Vitale was hired as the Pistons head coach, he drafted his scoring twins - Long and Tyler - and again the rumor mill grinded out stories that Long wouldn't make it because he was "too small", "wasn't physical enough" to play in the brutal National Basketball Association.

Long again proved the skeptics wrong.

With more than a fourth of the 1978-79 season left to play, Long is one of the bright spots in the Pistons' season. He continues to vie with Reggie Theus of the Chicago Bulls as the top scorer among 43 rookies on the current NBA roster while Tyler, fourth in the scoring behind Kansas City's Phil Ford, carries a slight edge over Portland's Mychal Thompson as the top rebounder among the first-year performances. When the Atlanta Hawks come to the Pontiac Silverdome on April 6, Long will be honored that night. A host of local dignitaries, former Long teammates, and friends will be on hand to honor a young player who beat the odds and made it.

It is doubtful if any pair of second-round picks taken by the same team from the same school have ever achieved the statistical figures that Long and Tyler have.

And Vitale figures that both deserve to be on the 1979 All-Rookie Team.

"They've earned it with their play," Vitale said. "With the injuries we've had, they've had to do much more than had been planned earlier. And when you look at the people they match up against and how they do, well they deserve any honors that can come their way."

"Show me any player taken in the second round who has meant as much to their team," Vitale continued. "Here are two players who had to change positions and who we figured to be contributors if they made it. Well, they earned their spots in the NBA and they have proved they can play."

Long, always known as a scorer and among the nation's top 50 scorers for the past two collegiate seasons, has developed a level of consistency with the Pistons after moving from a college small forward slot to become a pro wing guard.

A quick, 6-5 performer, Long has started 37 games and is the top foul shooter among the leading rookie scorers at 821. He recently had a consecutive string of 17 free throws snapped by Houston and then turned around to start a new one.

A streak shooter, Long has scored in double figures in 53 games, tops on the team this season. He's been in double figures for the last eight games, averaging 17.8 points for the stretch, and 27 of the last 28 games in all. John has been over 20 points 18 times with his best of 28.

Rated much improved on defense, his play has definitely been a key factor in keeping the Pistons in most of their games this season.

As the Pistons eye respectability in the stretch, "Thunder and Lightning" may create the storm that is needed for the renaissance.

JOHNNY LONG

A happy cage family

Basketball is a family affair for the Brewises who are members of the University of Michigan-Dearborn Campus quintet. Pictured with Coach Tip Smathers are Mike (12), Bill (14) and Rick who is a three-year starter and MVP for the Wolves. The ex-Divine Child athletes have been instrumental in helping the Wolves post a winning season and both Mike and Bill will be back in the U of M-Dearborn lineup a year from now. The three Wayne brothers also have two sisters starting for the Falcons at D.C. and a younger brother who is on St. Mary's of Wayne's cage team.

At U of M-Dearborn

Wayne's Brewis brothers brewing up cage storm

The "B" in basketball at the University of Michigan Dearborn campus stands for the Brewis brothers of Wayne.

The brothers: Rick, 21, Bill, 20, and Mike 18 are known as "B-1, B-2 and B-3" by their coach and teammates, and this year was the first time that all three have played together on a varsity basketball team.

The three cagers are also probably the only three brothers' combination on a junior or college team in the state.

The Brewis legacy at U of M-Dearborn began with Rick (B-1).

"I knew U of M-Dearborn was good academically," said Rick, a senior and four-year starter. "I could have gone anywhere for academics, but I wanted to combine studies with basketball."

Making good of his opportunity, Rick was co-recipient of the inaugural U of M-D Society Scholar-Athletic Award in 1978. Rick made the Dean's list academically while lettering in basketball each of his first three years.

Rick will graduate with a degree in sociology and a secondary education teaching certificate in social studies. He hopes to teach high school social studies or English.

Twice team MVP and an all-around excellent player, the 5-foot-7, 145-pound sparkplug is U of M-D's all-time leading scorer with a double figure average each season.

"Rick has really improved his game, giving up scoring strength by finishing off our fast breaks with his patented shots in the lane," offered Coach Tip Smathers.

Smathers noted that though Rick is a fine outside shot, he's quick enough to penetrate for high-percentage shots.

"He can beat most anybody on a drive, and cango the whole game at high speed," Smathers said.

Brother Bill (B-2), a junior, is a math major who intends to teach his specialty at a secondary school after graduation.

"Bill is a fiery and fire competitor," the coach pointed out, "and he really gets involved during practices and games, and is a team leader."

The stocky 5-10, 180-pound guard has a "pretty decent outside shot and with the abundance of fine guards on the team, Bill has been sharing time with a few others."

One of those rotating at the guard position is Mike, B-3, a freshman in the school of liberal arts. Mike is an up-and-coming prospect.

"Mike already has possibly the best perimeter shot on the team," Smathers said. "He's a very steady ballhandler, and next to Rick, probably is the best dribbler we have. Mike, like his brothers, is very aggressive on defense and is contributing a great deal to the success of our team," Smathers added.

Basketball isn't limited to the Brewis boys. The Brewis sisters have an act of their own when it comes to the hardwood. Both Mary and Kathy can play as well as many of the boys on the block.

"When I was in my freshman year at Divine Child many people recognized my last name because of Rick, even though he was off to U of M-Dearborn," said 17-year-old Mary Brewis, now a senior at the Dearborn-based high school.

Brock's shuts out Extra Point skaters, nears playoff title

As in the regular season and now in the playoffs, Brock's Homes has established itself as the team to whip in the Wayne-Westland Over 30 Hockey League.

Brock's last week clinched the regular season championship and served notice via a 4-0 shutout over Extra Point Bar that it also covets the playoff crown.

Tim Vanderburg got credit for his second shutout of the season while Dave Zajac pounded the opposition goalie for two goals. Buddy Brock and Rod Dittmar each had one goal.

In other playoff action, second place finisher Futurama Engineering advanced with a 6-3 breezer over 4-Seasons Sports Shop. Ron Wojewski gave the losers an early lead with a goal 15 seconds into the game, but that stirred the engineers into action and they rattled the nets for the next six goals to control and dominate the rest of the game.

Nick Palise, Jerry Robertson and Dave Roberts each scored to give Jack's what appeared to be enough to win this one, but Lee Calloway's goal made it a 3-1 game, then Mo Paquette scored to cut the margin to 3-2 with 3:29 left in the battle.

A goal by Jack's Jerry Howley gave the losers some breathing room but Corky Hays made it a 4-3 score with his first goal of the evening and then came back with his second to tie it up, setting the stage for Norm Beasley's decisive goal with a mere 26 remaining on the clock.

Volleyballers wrap up year

The All-Stars have amassed a 27-5 won-lost ratio to pace Division A, while the Jaycees stay atop of Division B with a 24-10 record.

All-Star Sports moved into first place by whipping Hers & His in three sets, 15-7, 15-12 and 15-9, while Snow White remained in their doldrums by losing to American Waste Service 17-15, 16-14, and 15-0.

The Spikers clashed with Jake's Lounge and that produced interesting results. Sweeping all three games by scores of 15-8, 15-6, and 15-5, the Spikers ousted the Bombers from first place.

Meanwhile, in Division B, the league-leading Jaycees padded their lead with a two-of-three series from the always dangerous Studio Lounge. Studio won a 15-10 decision, but the Jaycees countered with two 15-8 victories.

In games between the Leftovers and the Burrough's Burros, the Leftovers knocked their rivals out of first place 15-8, 15-6 and 15-5.

In other action, the Burrough's Blue drew first blood by winning a close 15-12 decision over the Burrough No.2 squad, but No.2 rallied and won the two crucial games 15-1 and 15-9.

After four weeks of playoffs, Burghoff's Bar leads Division C with 58 points as they swept three straight from Swope Car Company. Wonder Woman remained in second place after taking three from league champ, Jake's Lounge.

The Rubies, after dropping three games to Unistrut, managed to cling to the Division D lead, meanwhile, Westland Sports Shop took two games and secured the match from the young Sweethearts.

Division A leader, the LaParisien, continued its domination of the league as they humbled Jack's Jocks. Jack's remained stubborn during the confrontation, however, and lost a couple of squeakers.

Guess Who swept three games from the Tec Air Bombers to remain in the lead in Division B thanks to 63 points and they are trailed by Shazam who had 29, Mac Tools, with 27 and Tec Air with 17.

Ben Straight, Patrick Bell, Jeffrey Dixon, Bobby Stewart, Tom Goddard, Delbert Robinson and Loren Bryant. South won all 16 of its games to pad its record to 22-1 over the past two years. Bell and Stewart paced the offense, scoring at a 19.7 and 19.1 clip, respectively. Teamwise, South averaged 70.1 ppg and gave up 45.8.

and girls' sports in general, is finally getting a little more recognition.

What does basketball mean to the Brewis?

"It gets your mind off studies," remarked Mike and quickly points out that once he's out in the work world the sport will give him a break from the mundane chores of everyday living.

"Basketball is something in which if you work hard, you can achieve - it is a sport which incorporates all of the important elements of life itself: teamwork, individuality, carrying on a master plan by a superior, your

Richard Brewis Sr., a principal at Brake Elementary School in Inkster, added "that basketball teaches people how to get along.

"You learn to play a role," he continued, "and how to put up with things because you have to do it."

"We love the sport," said Mrs. Mary Lou Brewis, who works for the St. Vincent DePaul Society church civic group. "My husband was always an avid sports fan and we enthusiastic supported athletic programs all along.

some good ballplayers and would be the first to give them the credit.

He won five Northwest Suburban League cage titles, the last three in a row, by overcoming personal and family illness — illness that was a major factor in Gordie announcing his retirement from coaching last week.

Davis, whose teams also captured two Class A district titles, was operated on for a slipped disc in his back in 1975. In addition, his wife has been in and out of hospitals the past year and is reported doing fine.

The 50-year-old Davis was a student of the game of basketball and had the ability to get the best out of his players. His patience and understanding earned him the respect of all his players and they in turn performed to the zenith of their abilities.

His retirement comes when John Glenn has just finished its three most productive basketball seasons in history. The won-loss records for the past three years are 14-7, 19-5 and 17-5, a winning record of 50-17 for a percentage of .746.

"It was a privilege and honor for me to have the opportunity to be basketball coach at John Glenn," Davis said.

"My greatest fulfillment came in molding a group of individuals into a cohesive team unit. We've seldom had much height on our teams, so it has been the unselfish play and teamwork of the players that has brought Glenn its winning tradition.

Probably the "finest hour" for Davis and John Glenn in basketball came last year when the Rockets, fueled by play-making guard Daran Armstrong, won five playoff games to win the Class A District title and oust Plymouth Salem before losing the Regional final to Detroit Mackenzie.

Other stalwarts on that team were 6-5 center Tom Jurewicz, forwards Pat McBride and Mitch Preston, and guards Ed Bates and Doug Martin.

Salem Districts. Davis and his Rockets trailed Garden City West, 57-49, with 2:57 left in the District opener and Armstrong with four fouls.

However, the Rockets pulled a miracle finish to tie the game in regulation and win, 72-60, in overtime. The second game of the districts was even more exciting as Glenn battled Plymouth Canton through three overtimes before finally dropping a heart-wrenching decision.

"We've had more than our share of thrills and I've enjoyed the fantastic way the boys played together and worked as a team.

"My years spent as coach of the JV and varsity teams have been the highlight of my life and I appreciate everything everyone has done to make it so rewarding," Davis said.

He's a super person and a nice guy — and he's our Associated Newspapers' Basketball Coach of the Year!

Pitch, hit & run

If you're between the ages of 9 and 12 and want to test your baseball abilities, the Pitch, Hit and Run national competition is designed for you.

Now in its third year, the competition will be sponsored by the 2,300 participating Burger King restaurants across the country.

And local parks and recreation departments will hold the actual testing of the three fundamental skills - pitching, hitting and running.

Approximately 2.4 million boys and girls, or 16.6 percent of the national total in the 9-12 age group are expected to participate in this year's competition which will be staged throughout the nation.

Participants may obtain an official registration form at any of the participating Burger King restaurants in the area. There is no purchase necessary to enter the competition.

Further information may be obtained by telephoning your local recreation department.

In Wayne, Tim Tolliver will be handling the entries for the local contestants and further information may be obtained by telephoning him at 721-7400.

Ford introduces new postal bill

Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) has renewed his battle to obtain a lower first-class mailing rate for individual citizens.

Congressman Ford's Citizens' Postal Relief Act of 1979 was introduced and referred to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee, on which the Michigan representative is a ranking member.

A similar bill was introduced in 1977 by Congressman Ford, but was not acted upon by the House.

This year's legislation, somewhat refined from the 1977 proposal, would give private citizens the option of sending first-class mail at a rate of 11 cents, with a deferred level of service. They still would have the choice of using regular 15-cent first-class mail with priority service.

"I think it is absolutely unfair that the people of this country do not have this option, which is available to every other group of mailers," Congressman Ford said.

"The Postal Service has a responsibility to provide affordable mail service for everyone in the nation," he continued. "While rate options are available for businessmen and bulk mailers, none are now offered for the individual."

"My bill would give individuals that option. It would allow them to mail their letters, cards and payments for substantially less than the present 15 cents. Because this new class of mail would receive a deferred level of service, it would result in no extra subsidy or cost to the Postal Service."

"Thus, we would be helping the private citizen save money and curb inflation without adding to the cost of government."

Congressman Ford's 1977 legislation gained the support of a broad range of organizations, ranging from senior citizens to consumer groups.

Find out why no bank, credit union or savings & loan makes it as easy to earn more money on an interest/checking plan as NBD.

Compare your bank, credit union or savings & loan with NBD.

NBD UniBank/Cash Management Account	Your bank, credit union or savings & loan
A single plan that offers both checking and savings.	☒
A true "zero-balance" checking account that allows all funds to earn interest until needed.	☒
No-charge checking if you maintain an average balance of $2000 in savings.	☒
Savings account that earns interest compounded continuously.	☒
One comprehensive monthly statement that monitors both savings and checking accounts.	☒
A metro-wide system with thirty-four 24-hour banking locations to handle your deposits, withdrawals, transfers, etc. any day of the week.	☒

Here's how UniBank/Cash Management works:

If you have both checking and savings accounts at various financial institutions with a total average balance of $2,000—or if you have an average balance of $2,000 in a single account—it makes good sense to shift your money to a Cash Management Account at National Bank of Detroit.

Here are two reasons why. First, as long as you average a $2,000 balance in your savings account, the plan has no service charges. Notice that the $2,000 is an average balance. Not a minimum balance.

That means the balance in your account could drop well below $2,000 during some parts of the month, provided you make it up with a higher balance during other parts of the month.

Second, the funds in your savings account earn the highest bank interest allowed by law. When funds are needed in your checking account to cover checks, only the exact amount is transferred—not increments of $50 as is the case with some banks.

This allows you to keep a zero balance in your checking account at all times while earning a maximum 5% annual interest compounded continuously on funds in your savings account. That's an effective annual yield of 5.20%.

So, if your objective is to keep all of your funds earning maximum interest all the time they're not actually needed to pay bills and cover checks, stop in at any nearby National Bank of Detroit office. One of our representatives will gladly answer any questions you may have about NBD's UniBank/Cash Management Account.

To many homeowners, selecting a contractor for a major home improvement job is a frustrating, anxiety-ridden experience.

A little research and open communication is the key to finding a satisfying contractor relationship, according to Edward A. Reilly, merchandising manager for Johns-Manville.

"Beyond the word-of-mouth recommendation, which is still the best resource, homeowners should enlist the help of a local building materials company," he said. "Most outlets have a list of contractors they'll recommend."

The Johns-Manville expert also suggests homeowners check their local Better Business Bureaus.

"They're likely to have a fair indication of which contractors have a good reputation, and which may have consumer complaints filed against them," Reilly explained. "And banks which finance home improvement loans can tell whether or not a contractor is financially stable."

After obtaining a list of contractors, the homeowner should ask each candidate where he's worked before. "Any reputable contractor, and most of them are, will be anxious to supply names of satisfied customers," he added.

Each candidate should be asked to submit written bids that include materials, methods of installation, and other cost variables. A good way to judge these bids, suggests Reilly, is to learn beforehand about the various products on the market that will meet individual home improvement requirements. Weigh product features, warranties, and other pertinent factors. Talk with experts at building supply stores or lumber yards, and request product literature from manufacturers.

"The lowest bid may be tempting to accept," Reilly cautioned, "but it may not include quality materials that often turn out to be less expensive in the long run."

"Asphalt roofing shingles, for example, may have a lower price tag than fiber glass shingles, but their life-expectancy may be shorter than fiber glass. So, if cost is a major consideration — as it often is — examine initial prices plus life-cycle costs for the most economical choice."

The contract also must be specific. It should include the dates the job will begin, the expected completion date and all warranties.

The final step is to check that all brand names, colors, and other particulars stated in the contract are delivered.

"Then leave the contractor to do his job," concludes Reilly. "The extra research and communication that the homeowner establishes from the start is the best guarantee of a satisfying contractor relationship."

'Baker's dozen' of basic tool box

You've just moved into your first apartment or house and discovered that your superintendent is available chiefly at Christmas and your local home repairman is available at $15 to $25 an hour.

You are the best most reliable — and cheapest — alternative. And the most important foundation for mastering basic repairs is a beginner's "baker's dozen" tool box — 12 essential tools, plus some fix-it products and items you'll need to have on hand.

Basic products to stash away with your tool box are an assortment of nails, and screws, plus a variety of caulks and adhesives. In addition to Elmer's white glue (for wood and other porous materials) and their Cabinetmaker's Contact Cement, you should have an "instant bond" cyanoacrylate adhesive, such as Wonder Bond, on hand for glass, metal, most plastics and just about all other nonporous materials.

For caulking jobs, try the all-purpose latex caulk you can buy in a tube, thus eliminating the need to purchase a caulking gun.

Now for your dozen basic tools:

NAIL HAMMER: The best "first" hammer is a 16-ouncer with a curved, nail-pulling claw. Simply select the one which feels comfortable in your hand.

SCREWDRIVERS: The beginner's toolbox should have at least four screwdrivers — stubby standard for close quarters, 3-inch cabinet tip (narrow), 4-inch standard and 4-inch Phillips (one with an X-slotted shaft tip for X-top screws).

GRIPPING TALE: You can do practically anything with split-joint pliers — tighten and loosen nuts, pull nails, twist wires together. For maximum comfort, choose a pair with insulated (plastic) handles.

PUTTY KNIFE: A super aid for everything from scuffing off to smearing on, not mention prying off.

THE KINDEST CUT: Your tool box is incomplete if it lacks a sharp, easy-to-use knife. The handiest type is the one that accepts irregular-shaped, replaceable razor blades and has space for spare blades.

FOR MEASURING: Buy either a tape or zigzag (extension) rule. If you buy a tape, select the 12-foot one that permits complete removal from the case so that it can be used like a yardstick. A zigzag rule should have a slide extension at one end which allows easy and accurate inside measuring.

ON THE LEVEL: For a refrigerator, the new traverse rod for your drapes, or the picture you'd like to hang straight, you'll find a torpedo level an accurate, and welcomed help. This is for small chores — don't use a torpedo level to lay a new driveway.

ADJUSTABLE WRENCH: Buy a medium-sized one to tighten or loosen nuts (using pliers could damage a stubborn nut).

PUSHDRILL: Here's the essential tool for boring pilot (starter) holes in hardwoods. It comes with several sizes of bits to accommodate different screw sizes.

SCRATCH AWL: You'll find this ice-pick-like tool perfect for punching starter holes for screws and scratching in lines to be cut. Caution — use an awl only for softwoods; it will split hardwoods.

RAZOR BLADE SCRAPER: This is the tool-of-choice for cleaning paint from windows, ceramic tiles and such. For safety's sake, buy a blade scraper that stores with a protective cover.

COMBINATION WRENCH SET: Each wrench has an open head on one side and a corresponding size socket head on the other end. Buy a set that includes five different sized wrenches.

One final tip . . . top quality tools are most economical in the long run. Poor tools wear out rapidly, break and make it difficult to achieve a craftsmanlike result.

Energy saving: If planned, can enhance decor

Energy conservation within the home does not need to result in a gloomy, unattractive home. On the contrary, properly planned and selected lighting will enhance the decor while curtailing both electric bills and kilowatt consumption, states the American Home Lighting Institute (AHLI).

Consumers often do not realize what a small drain on energy residential lighting is. The Illuminating Energy Society (IES) reports that "lighting constitutes only 4 percent of the total electrical energy consumed, and residential lighting—only 2 percent of the total energy used in the home."

To gain maximum benefit from your light sources, AHLI specialists recommend the following:

1) Take as much advantage of the sun—the original energy source—as possible. You might simply arrange

1) Take as much advantage of the sun—the original energy source—as possible. You might simply rearrange your room so that a desk or table is set near a window that gets the sun, reducing the hours in which lights are required for that area.

2) Use a balanced lighting plan throughout the home, integrating both incandescent and fluorescent light sources, as well as table lamps. Illumination often is casually placed without any real consideration of the tasks conducted within the room.

There should be a ceiling fixture, switch-operated, for overall vision, plus auxiliary fixtures for specific "task" or decorative areas.

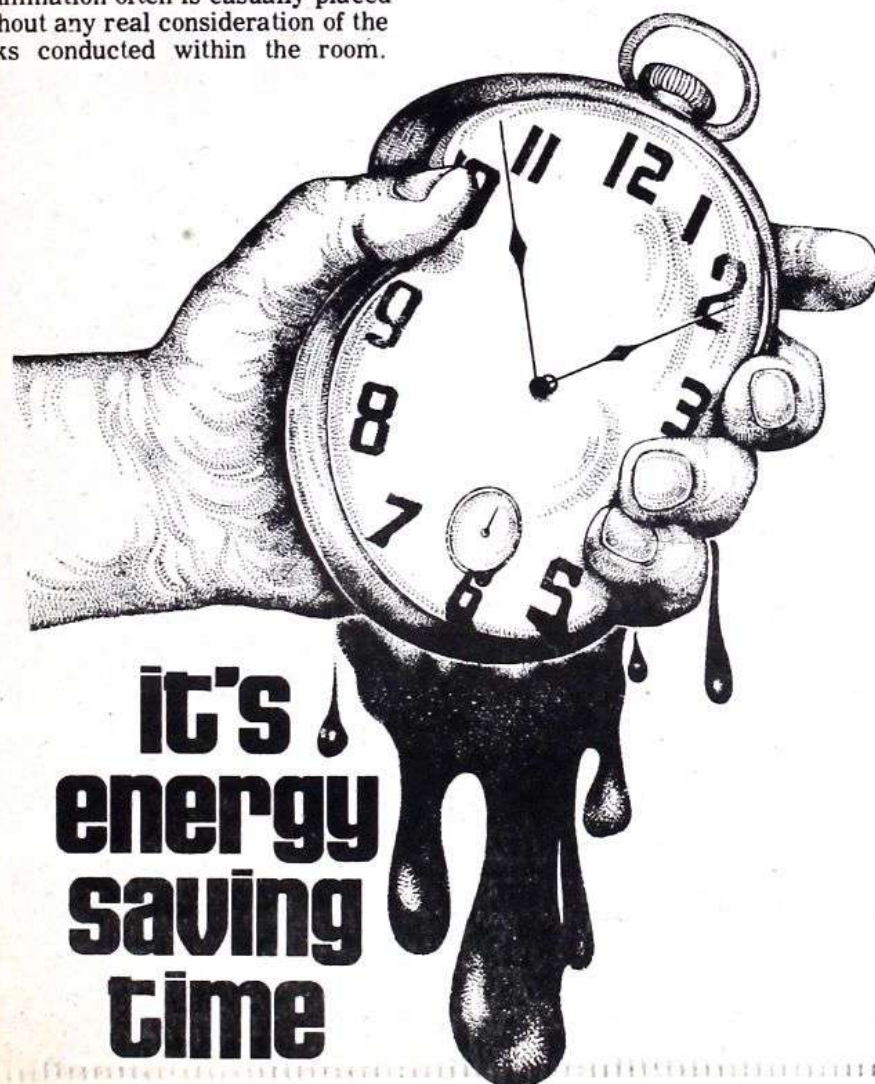

3) Select more efficient light sources. Although higher in energy consumption, incandescent bulbs are more versatile, and can be controlled through the use of dimmers and three-way switches. And incandescent bulbs set in reflector housings are more efficient than any other incandescent bulbs. Incandescent bulbs may be used efficiently if fewer bulbs are used, with higher wattages.

Fluorescent lights use 75 percent less energy than the incandescent. However, the linear shape of fluorescent bulbs confine their use in fixtures, so that they are often utilized in heavy work areas such as the kitchen, bath, laundry and basement areas.

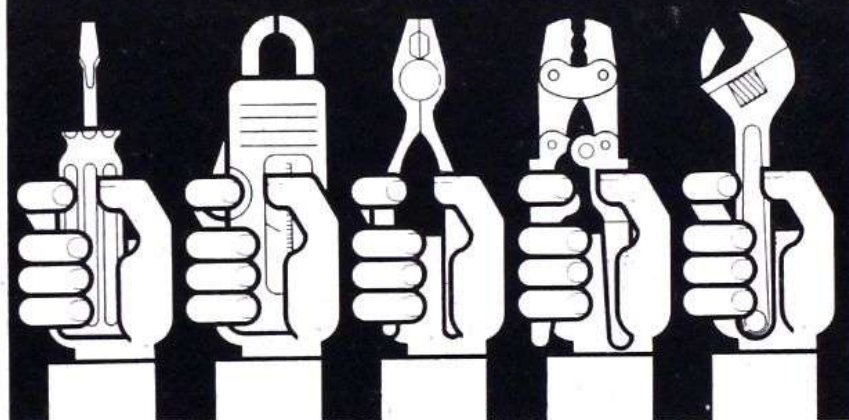

4) Keep light sources clean. Dirty fixtures, bulbs and tubes rob you of light.

5) Locate fixtures where they are required, so you will receive maximum benefit from their use.

6) Use a variety of fixtures—chandeliers, track lighting, wall washers, down lights—utilizing the specialized benefits of each type for maximum benefit.

Interior designs:

Making furnishings 'earn their keep'

Viable — a word misused, abused with over-use — still means what its derivation implies: livable . . . workable.

How many interiors displayed in department stores, model homes, or other areas do you see that really have a practical quality?

No matter how glamorous room vignettes are, home furnishings have to "earn their own rent." Most of us can't afford the time or money to create the super situations we witness in professional showcasing.

Interior designers are aware of the need to inspire, but at the same time appreciate that almost everyone needs ideas on how to eliminate elaborate revisions and costly remodeling. Here they offer helpful suggestions on how to get professional effects with minimal expense.

The first bit of advice concerns itself with wall space. Shelves to ceiling provide storage for necessities and niceties. By lifting the eye to higher levels, there is visual balance to furniture weight on the floor.

Strategic placement of furniture itself can also help "architect" a room. Coaxing sofas away from their traditional place against the wall and staging them at angles delineates conversation areas and establishes intimacy.

Dual-function furniture is a must to help provide a quart of living in a pin-sized apartment. A parsons table - desk is a dutiful, practical addition and stylish trios of tables that double as end or they offer helpful suggestions on how to get professional effects with minimal expense. Cocktail tables are excellent investments.

New wall systems, stacked to 78-inch door-height, can literally wrap around a room to look like authentic built-ins. Regardless of how stingy your living space is, certain basic storage and serving units will permit you to live and entertain quite comfortably.

There is a trend lately to the undressed window, and some designers predict that the drapery has seen its day. True or not, where a premium is placed on sunlight and air, the barer the windows — the better.

This is particularly true when you consider the viability of plants in a room. Living plants, blossoms, or trees indoors is proof that somebody cares . . . somebody loves. They're an important part of every decor — the "liveliest" part.

Sometimes a mound of potted mums under a mirror, a graceful fern or philodendron on a bookshelf, a spider plant hanging from the ceiling, or a Ficus tree in front of a window is just the right touch to animate the surrounding still life. Plants literally are breathing sculptures that cast beautiful shadows and silhouettes, and soften the harsh boundaries between the indoors and out.

Color and pattern in a room should be treated judiciously — a question of personal taste and discipline. Along with these considerations is the often neglected quality of texture. Texture, also, makes a room come alive.

Embossed patterned ceilings offer a unique way to get texture, unobtrusively, in a room. The shadow play that light sets up in textured materials creates subtle nuances of color shading, and is certainly part of smart interior design mystique. Remember — sensual pleasure can be suggested by observation alone; you don't have to touch the ceiling to "feel" it.

Texture interest can come from combining smooth walls with soft velvety carpet pile — or using carpet and resilient flooring in the same room. The latter is another way of separating room activities. Juxtaposing the two is particularly useful in rooms that serve two or more functions, like living-dining, kitchen-family, or bed-sitting rooms. Armstrong offers coordinated carpets and flooring for just such adjoining areas.

The rule for texture is the same as for color: Don't overdo! A delicate balance of smooth, soft, and rough textures allows for a three-dimensional look and feel.

In contrast, carpeting contributes the kind of fabric texture that relieves monotony. In addition, it warms, complements, and baffles sound. Vinyl floors are esthetically pleasing with their high-gloss finish that is easy care, no wax.

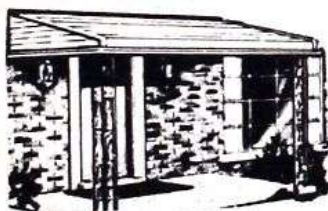

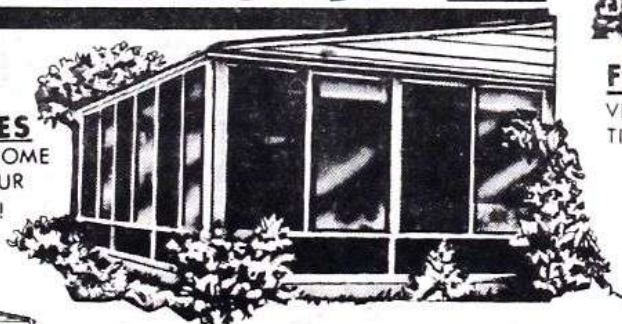

Gracious living is a question of style, not size. A small apartment or condominium can be turned into an atmosphere as charming and dramatic as any found in a large home.

Through windows

Energy survey determines loss

You suspect your windows are a major cause of heating and cooling energy waste. But, how can you tell how much they're wasting? How much of this might be conserved by adding storm windows? Or by installing new windows?

A new window energy use survey, devised by Season-all Industries of Indiana, Pa., identifies Energy Use Index (EUI) numbers for more than 200 existing and energy improved window conditions.

It also identifies possible condensation situations you can expect from various improvement options.

With these numbers, it's easy to calculate the approximate percentage of energy efficiency improvement that is possible with different window energy conservation measures.

For example, nonweatherstripped, single glass, double-hung (operate up and down) wood windows could have an EUI of something like 125.

If these windows were fitted with good storm windows, the EUI might reduce to about 75, which is 60 percent of the 125, or a 40 percent improvement.

If the old windows were replaced with new "thermalized" windows, the EUI might be as low as 50. This is a 60 percent improvement.

Knowing the window improvement, you can estimate the reduction this could make in overall heating fuel and cooling power consumption.

Existing windows in average conditions probably account for about 15 percent of the space comfort conditioning costs in an average home. A 40 percent window improvement, therefore, would save 40 percent of this 15 percent (or 6 percent) of the total bills.

A 60 percent window improvement could reduce overall heating and cooling consumption by 9 percent. This is based on improving average condition windows. For deteriorated windows, this could be as much as a 15 percent total energy saving.

Window improvement can lead to maintenance savings as well as energy savings. For example, the cost of painting windows every five years ($40 to $50 per window is about average for two coats of paint) could be reduced by about one-third by installing storm windows which help the paint last longer.

Or, virtually the total painting cost could be saved every five years by replacing existing wood windows with baked enamel finished aluminum replacement windows.

By dividing the cost of window modification by the annual estimated energy and maintenance savings, you can find the number of years it should take for your savings to repay your investment.

purchase

If your home improvement plans call for new windows, take the time to consider them carefully. Although homeowners may think windows are pretty much the same, they aren't. The ability of a window to conserve energy depends on what goes into it.

One leading window manufacturer advises homeowners that the best replacement window is the best window you can buy.

Since the windows you select are likely to be around for many years, other things besides initial cost should be considered. Well-made windows that are designed to conserve energy, for example, may cost less to own over the long term than inexpensive, inferior windows.

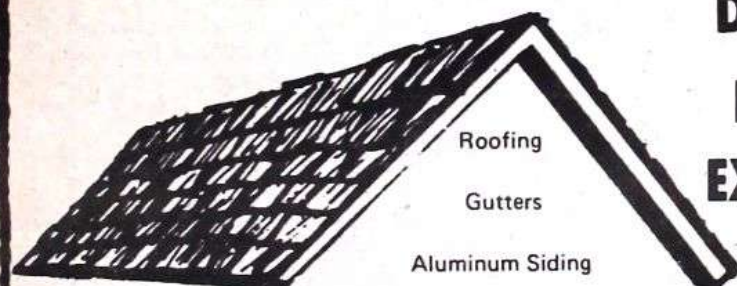

Quality windows save homeowners money in ways that may not be readily apparent. These include low maintenance, weather-tightness and fuel conservation.

Precision-made windows have factory-applied vinyl weather stripping. Double-pane insulating glass provides the fuel-saving benefits of separate storm sash, but without the bother. Windows also are available with triple-glazing for added fuel conservation.

Windows and gliding doors also can have a preservative-treated wood core sash and frame. Wood is used because it is a natural insulator and these units are encased in rigid vinyl for long-lasting, low-maintenance protection.

One way to save money on replacement windows is to install them yourself. Assistance is available in a free booklet which can be obtained by writing the Andersen Corporation, Dept. DYW, Bayport, Minn. 55003.

Finding new space

Believe it or not, this mess (above) can become a beautiful living area. Most homeowners don't see the possibilities until modern roof windows are installed. Then see everything in a new light. Roof windows can help you create a beautiful living area for the whole family. An overhead control bar on the window enables it to be installed close to the floor, permitting not only a better view of the outside, but also the placement of furniture directly in front of the window.

Attic expansion eases home space 'crunch'

Homeowners who are squeezed for space and pinched by inflation may find that attic expansion is the best answer to their space problems.

As land gets increasingly scarce and expensive, adding an extension to a present house may use more of the small garden area than desirable and may actually be prohibited by the local zoning code. And, a new addition which requires major expenditures for heating, plumbing and wiring, also brings a visit from the tax assessor which can lead to a whopping new tax assessment since the entire house probably will be reassessed, not just the new wing.

And, along with the normal expense and trauma that moving to a new house inevitable brings, the budgeting homeowner may find himself trading an eight-year-old 7½ percent mortgage for a new mortgage for a new mortgage with rates that start at 10½ percent and climb upward, along with higher property taxes that reflect today's higher home prices.

Many a couple needing a larger bedroom, a home office, a kids' recreation room or a comfortable television room have considered their large, unused attic as a candidate for expansion only to find the dark, musty space so unattractive and confining that they descend the stairs with relief, simply delighted for the moment to be out of the attic although their space problems still are unsolved.

However, there is a simple, relatively inexpensive solution to the basic light and ventilation problem of attic expansion. As thousands of homeowners already have discovered, roof windows can transform an attic into a light, airy living space - a loft for living just like the lofts so popular in today's luxurious modern houses.

This look attractively updates an older house and adds far more than the original investment to its future resale value. At the same time it provides the homeowner with a large space, complete with fashionable eaves and gables, which often can be tied into the existing heating plant.

Roof windows do not require the structural changes that dormer installations do, yet actually provide as much as 37 percent more light than vertical dormer windows while costing less. These windows can be installed in one day so that the roof is not open to the elements overnight. No building permit generally is required.

The homeowner can choose the sort and size of roof window best suited to his needs. There are roof windows that are made of sparkling clear, double or triple insulated glass with factory installed weatherstripping that greatly reduces heat loss.

A carefree aluminum exterior is coupled with a fine wood finish interior that complements today's natural-look furnishings. Screens, shades and awnings are attractive options and a remote control window opener for hard-to-reach windows is a luxurious extra that has inspired many a modern couple to look upward when thinking expansion.

to the other fellow. Not always.

They can happen to you. And claims following such catastrophes can be difficult to prove.

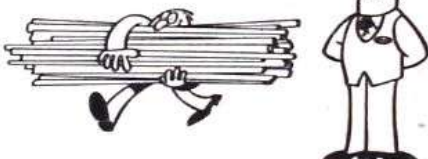

Just how much did you improve the game room before the fire? Was the front walk in a dangerous condition? Was the stolen silver really that valuable?

Not pleasant subjects, but very important ones. And your camera can be your best friend in insurance accident claims. The process is very simple:

Photography your home as it stands and with emphasis on any additions. Photograph all — really all — of your valuables. This means going from room to room to record furnishings. Then concentrate on such things as furs, jewelry, silver, china, antiques, books, appliances.

One final precaution: When you have taken your photographs, mark each print with place and date, post them all to yourself via registered, leave the envelope unopened and put it in a safe place away from home. An unopened registered letter carries weight — and an accurate date.

Old-House Journal catalogs authentic restoration items

Need an ornate plaster moulding . . . a turn-of-the-century chandelier . . . tin ceiling . . . wide plank flooring . . . or any of the hundreds of other items needed for the restoration of an old house?

A unique catalog has been published by The Old-House Journal that tells where to buy authentic products for restoring and decorating houses built before 1920.

"More and more old-house owners want to restore their homes with materials and items that are appropriate to the style, age and character of their house," noted editor Clem Labine. Locating these products and services is a difficult and time-consuming job without the aid of a comprehensive directory that tells who makes what and how to order it.

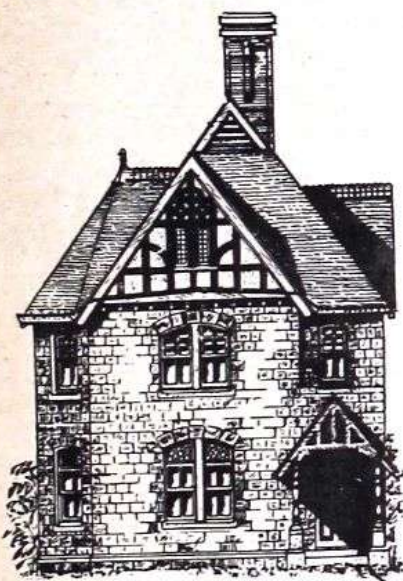

With the value of old houses zooming in today's market, the old-house owner realizes how much authentic details like carved mantels, beautiful ceiling medallions and stained glass windows add to the value of the house.

When care is given to every element — architectural details; appropriate color schemes; wallpaper, paint and fabric; period lighting indoors and outdoors; hardware and fixtures — the end result can be dazzling.

The Old-House Journal Catalog lists 662 companies that sell 7,282 products and services that are specially suited for houses built before 1920. Many of these companies are small and hard-to-find. They have been sought out by the editors of The Old-House Journal and their product or service verified by these editors.

The Old-House Journal Catalog is available for $7.95. To order, or for more information, write: The Old-House Journal, 69A Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11217.

In the basement

Extra room may be steps away

That extra room you're looking for may not be in a new home, but just a few steps away—in the basement.

Because the basics are already there, finishing a basement can be a considerably less-expensive home improvement than either expansion or a room addition. Should you decide to handle it as a do-it-yourself project, you can save even more money.

Before you dash out to buy the materials, there are two things to check—the local building code to determine whether the furnace and water heater may require a special enclosure and the basement itself. Make sure it's dry. Inspect it after a steady rainfall.

One idea you might consider, especially if there are children in the family, is converting the basement into a family room for entertainment and recreation.

If the basement is dry and in fairly good shape, all you may need is wall paneling, a ceiling, some furniture and perhaps tile for the floor. A lumber dealer has a wide selection of western wood available for the project.

The walls may need furring strips to accommodate the wall paneling. Once the paneling is installed, you may want to consider cabinets along one wall for storage space. They can be framed with 2 by 2 fir or pine. Built-in benches are another possibility and can meet in a corner and be framed with western lumber. If they have lift-up seats, they can also be used for storage. Such an arrangement saves floor space for entertaining.

For the custom look, use the same cedar or pine board paneling on the doors and drawers of the cabinets as on the walls. The counter top can be used for a stereo or television set or as a buffet counter for refreshments.

Ample overhead lighting and light-colored ceiling tiles and wall paneling will make the basement finished room appear larger and brighter.

Do it yourself

Whether you use one of those new 'nail guns' or a simple tack hammer, paneling can be fun, and think how much beauty and resale value a paneling job adds to your home. Steve Ellingson, Mr. Do-It-Yourself, has a publication, filled with simple step-by-step instructions and photographs, showing how paneling can be placed over concrete basement walls and regular or uneven plaster walls. There also are guidelines for estimating, proper sawing methods, cutouts around wall outlets, doorways and stairs. To obtain a copy of No. 596, Paneling Made Easy, send $2 (includes first-class postage and handling) in a check or money order to Steve Ellingson, care of the Associated Newspapers Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409. There also is a packet of five home improvement projects for building patios and adding room available for $7.50. It's entitled No. C-44 Home Improvement Packet, and includes the paneling instructions.

Planning ahead pays off

Planning ahead on home improvements keeps your house in good trim, modern and pleasant. It's easier on the family budget too.

A five-year program makes good sense for many, as it takes into consideration growing youngsters and changing family needs.

"The way to maintain a home's living and actual values," says one expert, "is to keep it up. One year, it may mean buying a new living room suite; another, repainting the exterior; another, installing air conditioning."

The consultant suggests a family conference to plan a five year home improvement program. This should result in decisions and a list

Put ceilings, wall tops to work

If you have a room whose decor just doesn't click, try this. Stand at the entrance and, keeping a wide perspective, slowly work your gaze from floor to ceiling. You might discover that the problem stems from the "Pyramid Principle" of interior decoration: the higher you go, the less there is.

The Law of Gravity dictates that functional furnishings be located at our level. But there's no earthly reason why the upper reaches of a room can't be used for decoration. In times past, an attractive room wasn't considered complete without embellishment on the ceiling and tops of walls. Today's interior decorators — both professional and do-it-yourself — are once again stressing these surface areas in the room scheme of things.

The ceiling can make or break a room. A beautiful decor with a drab ceiling is like a shiny Rolls Royce with a tattered convertible top. Yet when fix-up or fancy-up time comes, the ceiling often winds up in the "Can Wait Till Later" column of things to do.

This probably is a throwback to the time when ceiling materials that yielded a nice decorative effect were troublesome to apply (plaster, wallpaper, etc.), while those that were easy to install were style ciphers (plain white acoustical tiles, for instance).

Times have changed, though. Nowadays acoustical tiles (12-by-12-inch) and lay-in panels (2-by-4-foot) come in all manner of designs. Some bear uncanny resemblance to sculptured plaster; others to inlaid wood parquet; still others to rustic wooden planks. Whatever the room motif, there's an acoustical ceiling pattern to match.

Made of lightweight mineral fiber or wood fiber, these squares or oblongs are easy for the do-it-yourself to put up. The tiles are either cemented or stapled to the old ceiling; the panels are inserted in a grid hung from above by wires. The savings on installation labor can be applied to the 40-to-90-cent a square foot cost of the material.

Once the ceiling is shipshape, it can be shown off — "accessorized" much as a lovely occasional table is accented with a fine figurine or vase of flowers.

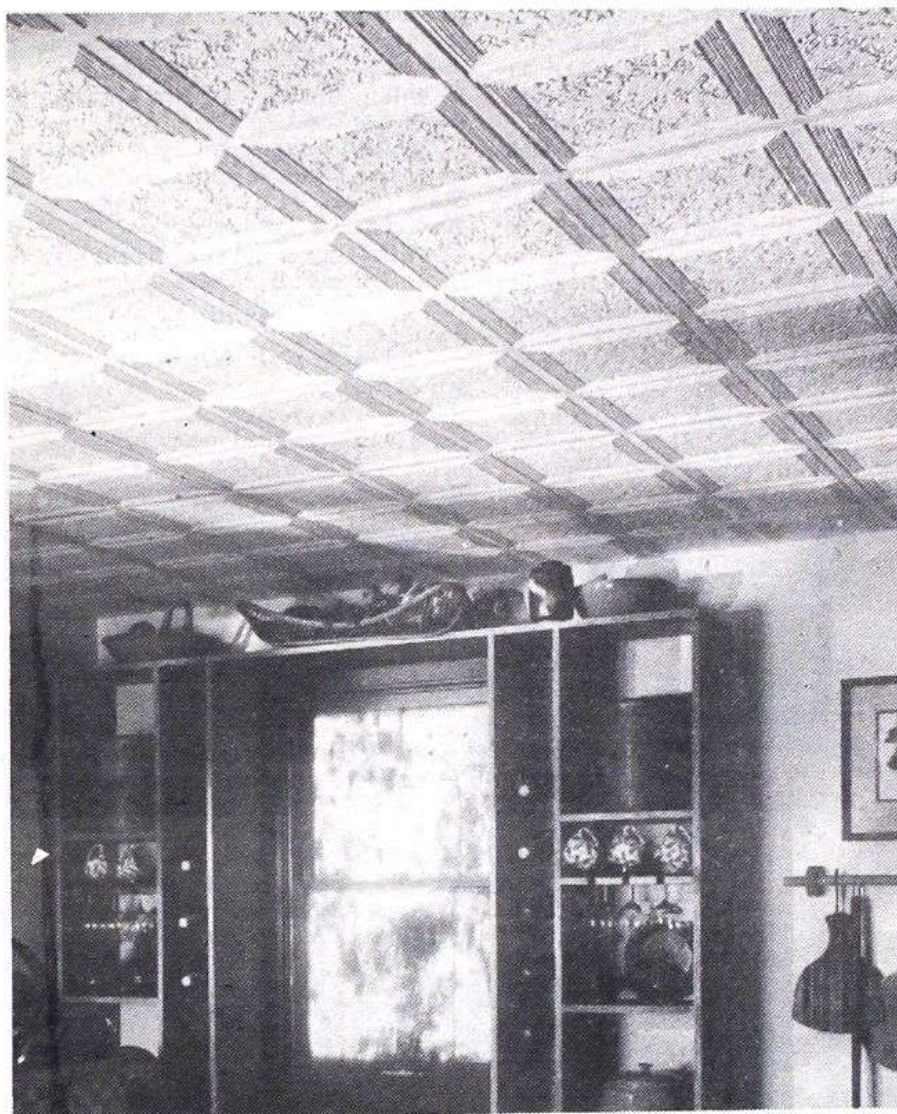

Ceiling beams are an excellent way to do this and give the entire room a cozy, casual aura at the same time. They needn't be heavy, rafter-like members requiring massive structural support. Natural-looking fake ceiling beams can be made by wrapping a single 2-by-4 or 4-by-4 or two 2-by-4s for a double-thickness effect in self-sticking wood-grain vinyl sheeting. This paper can be bought in home centers and wallpaper stores.

The beams are especially easy to attach to a suspended ceiling by screwing them to the main runners of the system. A washer overlaps the runner's flange and anchors the beam. The grid isn't marred or altered in any way, and the lightweight beams can be removed as easily as they are put up.

Ceiling chandeliers, pendant lamps and old-fashioned wooden-blade fans provide similar overhead focal points in a room.

As do plants hung from the ceiling or upper walls. The shadows and silhouettes they create add a good deal of charm to a room and help soften the starkness of some modern decors. (Artificial plants are acceptable provided they are either so realistic — or so artificial — as to forestall conjecture.)

The wall frieze — an ornamental band across the top of the wall — is a classic decorative treatment which has come back into vogue. The ancient Greeks carved them in their temples; the Victorians stenciled them around their drawing rooms. Today, adhesive vinyl paper and glued fabric do nicely (and are easier to remove).

The frieze can be used either to complement or to contrast with the ceiling or wallpaper patterns. The balance and symmetry, line and form imparted by a wall frieze can divert attention from any irregularities in a room's layout.

Tall furnishings such as etageres, china closets and bookshelves also generate topside interest. Lining their top compartments with baskets of dried flowers, bottles of spices, silver trays and similar items will catch the eye and make its upward journey pleasurable.

Remodeling is cheaper

Often when thinking about remodeling, homeowners assume that the cost of any improvement will be returned to them when they sell their home.

However, according to experts, the majority of improvements cost more than if they had been originally built into a home. Because such improvements will probably not add as much to the resale value of a home as the cost of the improvement, it is well for the homeowner to weigh carefully the pros and cons of any home improvement.

Experts point out that converting a porch into an extra bedroom, for instance, is less expensive than adding a new room, and yet will yield the same resale value. Obviously, it's more economical to convert than to start from scratch, a point the homeowner should keep in mind when contemplating improvements.

If you are planning to make improvements with view to reselling, real estate professionals advise improving the "eye appeal" of your home rather than investing in costly "hidden" improvements. Attractive, new wallpaper and linoleum in the kitchen, would probably help sell your home more readily than new siding, for instance.

If your objective in making improvements is to make your home more enjoyable, only you and your family can decide whether the cost will be justified. As today's real estate market continues to escalate, more and more families are finding it economical to "fix up" rather than to "move up."

In the final analysis, home is a personal place — and only the homeowner's personal values can estimate the value of any home improvement.

In flooring 'battle'

Inlaid versus rotovinyl

Nearly everyone likes a good mystery . . . the more thrilling the better. But no one wants to be cast in the role of the victim. That's why we'd like to be spared any suspense when contemplating a purchase for our home, especially a major one.

We want to know that the product we choose is the one that will serve our needs best. Unfortunately, the whole subject of sheet vinyl floors is confusing — not to say mysterious — to some people. If you haven't been in the market for a new floor lately, you might be one of those.

"Sheet" floors are the kind that come 6, 12 or more feet wide, as opposed to tiles, which usually are 12-inch squares. They have a certain recognized advantage over tiles.

When installed there are few seams, if any, so there's no place for dirt to catch and hide. The design flows from wall to wall without interruption. And you'll find patterns and colors in sheet floors that can't be obtained with the manufacturing processes used for tile.

The first thing to get clear is that all sheets floors made in the United States these days are vinyl floors. Linoleum is a thing of the past. Vinyl floors first appeared after World War II. In the ensuing years, their fortunes rose while linoleum's declined.

The reason is simple. Vinyl floors are better looking, easier to install and easier to keep up. Also, linoleum could not be installed in basements or on concrete slab foundations because it was not a moisture resistant product. In 1974, the last domestic manufacturer stopped making linoleum. Today, any sheet floor you buy will be made from vinyl, and you can install it anywhere in your house — basement to attic.

Basically, there are only two types of vinyl floors — inlaid vinyl (the design goes through the entire thickness of the material) and rotovinyl (the design is printed on and covered with clear vinyl).

Then there are options to consider — no-wax, cushioning and do-it-yourself. You might think of it as like buying a car, but in one respect it's quite different. You don't start with a basic model and add or subtract options. That's done at the factory. Instead, your flooring dealer offers you a selection of models with (or without) various options already built in. You just pick the floor with the options you need.

Most inlaid vinyl floors are made by a painstaking process that builds up thousands of vinyl granules, then fuses them together with heat and pressure (much the same way materials are created in nature).

Also, yard for yard, these floors feel heavier than others. Pick up an inlaid vinyl floor and heft it. It gives you a satisfying feeling, akin to the pleasure you get from the sound of a solid thunk when you slam the door of a well-made car.

But the main reason why these floors are made this way (because they do cost more) is the looks. In the final analysis, it's up to individual taste. People who prefer the inlaid vinyls find the colors richer and deeper, while other people are attracted to the photographic realism of the rotovinyls.

Some inlaid vinyl floors have cushioning, most do not. These floors are not for do-it-yourselfers. Their very heftiness makes them awkward for the amateur to work with.

However, inlaid vinyl floors do come with most people's favorite option — a no-wax surface. A no wax surface has a gleaming shine of its own. It's a substance even tougher than vinyl that's applied over the vinyl at the factory and goes on clear and shiny. And it keeps its shine, without waxing or buffing far longer than ordinary vinyl.

Most people seem to want the no-wax option for their floors, particularly in kitchens and baths where, psychologically at least, shininess is equated with cleanliness. Foyers and family rooms are another matter. There, the preference is for natural designs (that look like brick, slate, stone, wood, etc.) with less gloss — that is without the no-wax surface.

Rotovinyl, the other major category of sheet vinyl floors, are made by a rotogravure process, which combines photography and printing. Almost any image that can be photographed can be reproduced in a rotovinyl floor, with remarkable realism. The printed design is protected by a topping of clear vinyl.

All rotovinyl floors have an inner core of foamed or expanded vinyl as part of their standard construction.

That means that they all are cushioned to some extent. In some rotovinyl floors, the amount of cushioning is nil. Others have much more, and the amount generally is related to the price of the floor.

The cushioning ought to be fairly firm to bounce back from indentations. Besides being comfortable, cushioning will muffle the noise of footsteps and other clatter.

Rotovinyl floors have the no-wax option, too, the same shiny durable substance found on higher-priced inlaid floors. The maker merely substitutes a no-wax surface for the customary vinyl surface.

Remember, no-wax floors do need to be cleaned, and that means regular sweeping or vacuuming and occasional sponge-mopping with a general purpose detergent. Some detergent labels say you can skip the rinsing step, but that's not true for the floor.

Be sure to rinse thoroughly or the detergent residue will act as a dirt trap. The shine will still be there, but it'll be hidden by an icky gray film.

As a class, rotovinyls are suitable for do-it-yourselfers, although many people choose to have someone else do the work. A good rule of thumb is, any floor made in both 6- and 12-foot widths is recommended for do-it-yourselfers.

Sometimes these floors can be "loose laid", that is, put down without any adhesive. This depends on the condition of the subfloor and whether it is subject to expansion and contraction from seasonal changes in humidity. Your dealer should be able to advise you on whether you can use this installation method.

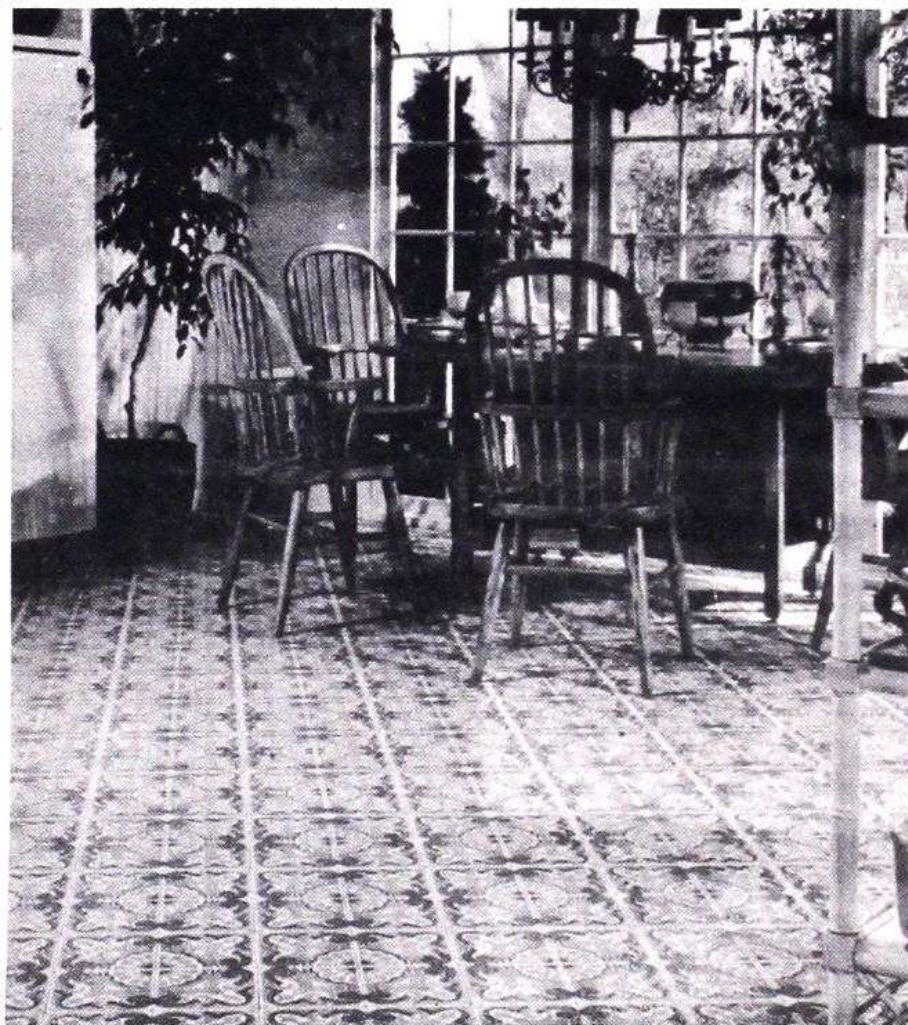

If you can't, you'll have to cement the floor down by spreading adhesive over the entire surface to be covered. Your dealer should have booklets showing the procedure to follow at every step.

It's possible to install a new floor over an existing vinyl, linoleum or tile floor, but only if the old floor is in good condition. It can't be coming loose, curling up or parting at the seams. Also, it shouldn't be embossed (the embossing would "telegraph" through) or cushioned.

If your old floor has any of these problems or characteristics, it probably will have to be ripped up, or more likely, covered with a new particleboard or plywood subfloor (sometimes called "underlayment"). If you're paying somebody to do the work, you can expect to spend another $4 to $5 per yard for new underlayment, including labor and materials, besides the cost of the new floor and its installation.

The latest option in floors is the Interflex method of installation. This method lets you install a new floor directly over an old floor even if that old floor is cushioned or embossed or is in poor condition. (If the defects are too serious, though, you'll still need new underlayment).

Floors installed the Interflex way are fastened down only at the sides of the room.

Home cleaning program keeps carpeting looking new longer

If part of your spring home improvement plans include new carpeting, then be sure you know the facts when it comes to carpet care to keep it looking new longer.

To prolong the life of your new carpet and help it keep its original good looks, follow a regular home-cleaning program.

and get special services when you need them.

All carpet looks great when first installed. How it looks years later depends not only on the quality of the carpet itself, but attention to maintenance.

Establish a regular vacuuming schedule to suit your conditions — carpet color and style, amount of traffic, type of soil, etc. At least once a week (more frequently in heavy traffic areas), give your carpet a thorough vacuuming. If soil and dirt become embedded in the pile, your carpet will lose its bright new appearance. Generally, the upright vacuum cleaner with multiple height adjustments and a driven brush or beater bar-brush will do the best job.

Carpet experts give this advice about home cleaning:

Hot-water extraction (sometimes called "steam" cleaning) provides the most satisfactory carpet cleaning in home use. Hot water mixed with carpet shampoo is flushed through the pile and most of it is vacuumed away, all in one step; a minimal amount of residue remains. To date it is the most effective do-it-yourself cleaning operation. The units and cleaning agents are available for rental in most neighborhood stores.

In spite of attentive home care, your carpet may need occasional professional cleaning to remove accumulations of embedded grease and dirt.

Wall-to-wall carpet, by necessity, is cleaned in the home. Skilled professionals know the best methods to use on different fibers and textures; they have special equipment to do an expert job with minimum inconvenience.

Snip . . . don't pull

Snip, don't pull. That's the advice from carpet experts when it comes to taking care of sprouts of "pills." Tufts that may rise above the surface from time to time should be cut off at pile height. For the proper care of your carpet send for Armstrong's Guide to Carpet Care, Armstrong Cork Co., Consumer Services Department, Lancaster, Penna. 17604.

Picking the spot

When adding a room to your home, try to pick a location where an existing window or door can be used as a connecting passageway.

By doing so, costs are reduced because the existing opening already will have a functioning header.

Patio installation has wide appeal

Probably no home improvement prospect has such wide appeal as installing an outdoor patio. It can add much to family, and guests', pleasure during the pleasant outdoorsy months.

The handyman householder or professional has the choice of many building materials.

Slender concrete patio blocks are available in sizes and colors that lend themselves to many pattern combinations. A mixture of sizes achieves a flagstone effect, while units in different colors create checkerboard pattern.

In installing a patio, its boundaries are marked off and the soil excavated to a depth that will accommodate a 2-inch layer of sand with the concrete blocks laid on top.

With patios abutting the house, a slope of about 1 inch per 15 feet will assure proper rain run off. Some installers lay blocks on edges around the patio boundaries before leveling off the sand and laying the blocks in a preplanning pattern, starting from one corner.

When finished, loose sand is sprinkled over the surface and swept into the cracks.

SPECIAL PROBLEMS

Spots and Stains

If you act promptly, most carpet stains can be prevented or removed easily after a spill or accident. The following steps are recommended:

(1) Remove excess spillage immediately. Take up semi-solids with a spoon. Soak up liquids with a clean white cloth, facial tissue, or paper towel.

(2) Dampen a clean white cloth with a solution of a liquid carpet shampoo (not a household cleaner) diluted according to directions. Use this to "lift" the spot with a twisting motion, working from the edge to the center of the spot. Turn cloth and re-wet it as needed. Dry the area by placing a pad of tissues (about 1/2 inch thick) on the wet spot under a weight for several hours.

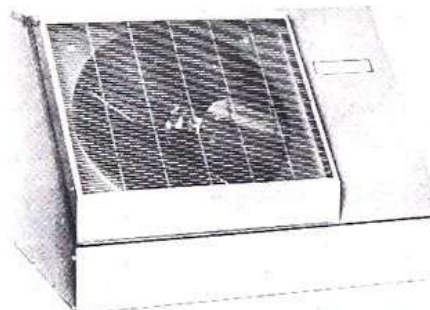

(3) If the spot persists, repeat Step 2, using a dry-cleaning fluid. (CAUTION: Do not use carbon tetrachloride, gasoline, or lighter fluid.) There is no need to apply tissues to dry the spot.

(4) If neither shampoo nor dry-cleaning fluid will work, try a spot-remover kit or call a professional cleaner.

NOTE: It is advisable to test shampoos and cleaning fluids on inconspicuous areas of your

Accessories can make the room

Anyone who's ever decorated a home or apartment knows that "accessories make the room". It's those clever little splashes of color and interesting objects d'art that give character and personality to a space.

But finding exactly the items needed to make your rooms "come alive" can be difficult and time-consuming.

How many times have you opened a magazine and come across something you wanted for your home, but couldn't find out where to buy it?

Have you ever spotted an interesting object in a department store room setting, only to discover it's a "prop" and not for sale?

These are but a few of the frustrating experiences women face when shopping for decorative accessories. Often when you see something you like, it's not available. Or worse yet, you may buy an object and take it home thinking it'll look terrific next to your sofa, only to discover that it isn't right for the room at all.

Now there's a unique service available that eliminates much of the guesswork involved in selecting decorative accessories. Called "Decorator's Guild," the program is sponsored by Armstrong, a company that's been creating home interiors for more than 60 years. For a modest membership fee, you can learn how to accessorize your rooms just like the professionals do.

Three times a year,

Guild members receive an illustrated 96-page color Showcase featuring room-by-room tours of exciting homes and apartments decorated by professional interior designers. The unusual appeal of this magazine — aside from the wealth of decorating information it contains — is that you can order accessories directly from the rooms featured.

Hundreds of beautiful objects from all over the world are offered for sale including paintings, wall-hangings, pottery, planters, table-top art of all kinds, bedspreads, kitchen equipment, clocks, baskets and pillows. Each item is shown in a fully decorated room interior to help you visualize how it might look in your own home. Prices are comparable to what you'd expect to pay in a local store, and all merchandise is backed by an unconditional money-back guarantee.

Each issue includes a comprehensive source list identifying the make, model and manufacturer of virtually every item of furnishing shown in the magazine. Guild members also receive hefty discounts on national decorating books and periodicals, plus a quarterly newsletter.

A one-year membership in Decorator's Guild costs less than $11 and is open to anyone in the continental United States. For information on how to join, write to Armstrong Decorator's Guild, Lancaster, Penna. 17604.

Finding space for children Rooms are what you make them

Years ago, there was a loony comic strip about a family of down-and-outers who were so short on everything that their little boy slept in a bureau drawer.

Well, things may not be quite as bad around your house, but many growing families do feel the pinch of space... especially when the time comes for youngsters to have rooms of their own.

Be it ever so small, a child really does need a place of his or her own. According to psychologists, it should be a place that offers lots of stimulation — colors, patterns, textures, the play of light and shadow. All of which can make a room fun to be in — and serve a serious purpose, too.

According to the famous, child development specialist Jean Piaget, environments that stimulate the senses also stimulate the brain... so a child's room really plays an important part in his or her growing up.

Making room — or rooms — for children is basically a matter of finding room. It could be a case of converting the attic or enclosing a porch. But, space is what you make it, and how you make it. You can divide a large room into two perhaps with a sliding partition, maybe with a storage wall. One handy idea: Put a stack of cubes down the middle of a large room, with some facing one side, some the other. That way, you gain two "rooms" — and lively storage for both.

Thrift hint: Build your own cubes out of chipboard then paint or cover them to make the most of the decor. For example, you could cover the cubes in wallcoverings to match the walls, and paint their insides in a bright contrast.

Whether you're doing a major remodeling job or just redecorating for a child, be sure your plan includes wallcoverings. There's no quicker or surer way to turn plain space into a happy world for a child than with the lively patterns and colors of a good wallcovering.

A final tip from the experts: When you plan your child's room, let the child share in the planning. Remember: you're not just giving him a room; you're giving him room to grow in.

Some people prefer a basic bathroom. Others like the plush look, with touches such as fur-covered scales. Most want a bath somewhere in between; comfortable, attractive and well-designed.

About three million families a year remodel their baths or build a new one. Although decorating tastes vary, the majority share two goals — more room for the family and additional storage space for their combined beauty and health supplies. The former is achieved with good layout. The latter with vanities.

The National Kitchen Cabinet Association, which certifies construction and performance standards of kitchen cabinets and bath vanities, says the surest route to successful remodeling is careful planning. For bathroom projects, it recommends the following:

— Be sure of what you want. Equipment is expected to last many years, and its color and design can't be easily changed.

— Be realistic about do-it-yourself jobs. Most handymen can install a vanity, but contractors are usually needed for plumbing and wiring.

— If the bathroom will serve special needs, plan accordingly. Infant care, for example, calls for a large lavatory basin with swing-away faucets; wide countertops for changing and dressing; and cabinets for diapers, baby towels and supplies; perhaps a built-in hamper for soiled clothes.

— Consider traffic patterns. If several people get ready for work or school at the same time, it helps to have double lavatories, a stall shower in addition to the tub, compartmentalized toilet and wash-up facilities, plenty of mirrors and electric outlets.

— If a family member is disabled or chronically ill, consider hand rails along the walls and near the toilet, and a bath tub with a built in seat. For someone confined to a wheelchair, the door must be wider and the lavatory lower than usual.

(5) Apply a pad of tissue (½-inch thick) and hold it in place with a weight. Check occasionally to see if the tissue has absorbed all the liquid. If some liquid remains, apply a new pad. The carpet should be dry after six hours.

(6) When dry, gently brush carpet pile to restore fluffiness. If some stain remains, steps 2, 3, and 4 can be repeated.

Spills such as blood, furniture polish, lipstick, indelible ink, paint, and rust need special attention. Free literature on carpet care that includes a comprehensive spot-removal chart is available by writing to Armstrong Cork Co., Consumer Services Department, Lancaster, Penna. 17604.

Sprouts and Pills

Sometimes a tuft will rise, or "sprout," above the surface of a carpet. Don't pull it out; snip it off with a pair of shears. Use the same technique if little balls of fiber (called "pills") appear. Balls of fluff seen on the surface of many new carpets are bits of fiber left in the pile during manufacturing. They do not indicate poor quality and gradually are removed by regular vacuuming.

A rise in humidity may cause a temporary rippling in wall-to-wall carpet; drier weather usually corrects the problem. By the same token, a decrease in humidity may present a static electricity situation. Manufacturers are starting to use special anti-static yarns in carpet so there is less chance of static problems. However, if you need help with an existing carpet, call in a professional carpet cleaner and ask for his advice; or use a humidifier or special anti-static carpet spray.

However, if you need help with an existing carpet, call in a professional carpet cleaner and ask for his advice; or use a humidifier or special anti-static carpet spray.

Since carpet is a major investment in the furnishing of a home, it makes sense to give it the care it deserves. With proper attention quality carpet should stay beautiful looking for years.

A good paint job depends on the right size and type of brush for the task at hand.

For painting large areas, a brush that is 4½ to 5 inches wide will speed your work and produce good results.

And here's some painting do's and don't's.

DON'T paint when the temperature is below 50 degrees. Paint doesn't flow easily at low temperatures.

DO use good paint. It flows easily and smoothly, costs less in the long run because you save time and labor.

DO test paint for dryness before applying a second coat.

DON'T paint over paint that has cracked or peeled.

Kay Bee Construction Salesmen Licensed

The home improvement industry has seen some drastic changes in the past few years. For one thing, all sales people are required by law to be individually licensed. The license insures home owners that any representative is qualified to have a sound knowledge of basic building codes. Also, that he is a legitimate and an ethical person.

Kay-Bee Construction is a family owned and operated business. Louis Grosslight drove a horse drawn trolley down Woodward Avenue in Detroit in the 1800's. Sherman Grosslight was the founder of Kay-Bee Construction and he was one of the pioneers in the home improvement industry. It was his idea to make sure that sales people have individual licenses, so that the consumer would be better protected.

Now Terry Grosslight, a third generation Detroit, is the president of Kay-Bee Construction. Terry has first-hand knowledge of all types of building. As a college student he spent his summers working with the various trades in the building business. "I worked with the laborers digging foundations, cement men, finish carpenters and all the various trades. I guess you can say I learned from the bottom up, and I am very grateful that my dad had the foresight to make sure I could experience various problems that occur in the building of any job."

Terry now heads the multi-million dollar Kay-Bee Construction Company. He has seen some of the changes in past years in the home improvement industry. However, he still operates on one old-fashioned principle—"Most customers don't do much building in a lifetime. Perhaps they remodel a kitchen, or add a room on. Whatever the work is, it is something new to them and therefore we see they (the customer) gets special consideration." A timetable which schedules all the trades to work is given out, and as Terry preaches to his many employees, "the customer is always right." That may seem to be a trite statement, but it has helped Kay-Bee Construction become one of the leaders in home improvement industry.

With the cost of new houses so high Terry feels that his business and the industry in general will continue to grow. As a last word of advice to prospective home improvement customers, Terry said. "Make sure you know your contractor and be sure he has been in business for a period of time and has a good reputation."
